Bell offers PBX service additions

Illinois Bell has added a new member to the Dimension PBX family, has made some major changes in its Dimension PBX line and has developed a new Variable Term Payment Plan, according to Bernard F. Sergesketter, vice president-business marketing. Tariffs have been approved by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The new Dimension 600 PBX is a medium-sized system positioned between Illinois Bell's Dimension 400 and Dimension 2000 and is designed for business customers who need up to 900 lines. The newest Dimension PBX includes Electronic Tandem Switching (for communications between two or more locations), Energy Communications Service and several optional customer-participation features.

The enhancements will provide a wider availability of many communication features previously available only on the company's largest PBX systems. For example, the company said, the smaller-sized Dimension 400 PBX will be able to serve the general business needs of a broad spectrum of industries, helping them increase productivity and reduce operating costs.

"We've made several improvements, but the most exciting is feature package is because of the broad base of customers to which it appeals," said Sergesketter. "This feature package includes options for uniform call distribution, electronic custom telephone service and a cost control program," he said.

In addition, Illinois Bell now offers a new uninterruptible power service which provides full service backup for the Dimension PBX systems.

"This service is more than sufficient for 98 percent of all commercial power failures today and offers vital continuity when energy management is involved," Sergesketter said, adding: "This is an extremely important benefit in today's environment when a communications system breakdown is equivalent to a business breakdown."

Sergesketter said the consolidation of software features, combined with the range of systems now available, will provide greater efficiency, flexibility and customer control.

Under the Variable Term Payment plan, a customer has a choice of a month-to-month or 48-month plan. During the course of the contract, there will be no increase in rates. This plan was designed to meet customer needs to achieve predictable, stable rates throughout the life of the payment agreement, Sergesketter said.

Recycling of iron, steel discards urged

The scrap metal industry is launching a major drive to spur increased use of scrap iron and steel in the steel manufacturing process.

"If the nation is serious about recycling and saving energy, then it's time that industry, the consumer and government start working together to make the best possible use of all our resources," says Morton B. Plant, president of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel.

Plant said the scrap metal industry will take the lead in a new effort to convince scrap users — steel companies and foundries — that recovered iron and steel is a bargain, with prices dropping recently to 40 percent of their level of six years ago. The steel composite price went up by 80 percent during the same period.

"Even if scrap prices return to their 1974 levels or exceed them, scrap is still a bargain. If you consider inflation, prices today are less than they were 25 years ago," Plant said.

In addition to the industry's efforts to convince steelmakers of price advantages, the scrap institute also plans to demonstrate to consumers the savings in energy and environmental costs.

The institute's program will try to dramatize such facts as these: When 1,000 tons of steel are made with scrap instead of ore, the energy saved is equivalent to 140,000 gallons of gasoline.

Each ton of scrap used in making new iron and steel also saves one and a half tons of iron ore and one-third of a ton of coal. During the past 60 years, scrap industry shipments to U.S. steel mills and foundries conserved 2.6 billion tons of iron ore and nearly 600 million tons of coal, both finite resources.

'Save the Bus' public meeting

"Save the Bus" flyers are being distributed this week on the Pontoon Express Bi-State bus route, urging riders to attend a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 24, at the Nameoki Recreation Center, Amos and Franklin Avenues, it was learned today.

The flyers advocating the creation of a transit district in Illinois to avoid the elimination of bus service to various points in the Metro East area are being handed out to passengers by Lois Wetton of Granite City, who also is speaking to the issue during trips to and from St. Louis.

Mrs. Wetton, who rides the bus daily to her job in St. Louis, said a Bi-State official has agreed to attend next Monday's meeting to explain the transit authority's current financial plight and reasons for the proposed curtailment of services in Illinois.

Members of the Madison County Board have been invited to attend, together with the general public, Mrs. Wetton said.

WEEK'S HOLIDAY FOR UNIVERSITY CLASSES
Students attending Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville during the fall quarter will observe the annual Thanksgiving break Nov. 24-30. Offices will remain open during the week, except on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 27 and 28. For specific information about building closings, interested persons may contact the University Center at 692-2739. Normal campus operations will resume Monday, Dec. 1, at 7 a.m.

—The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has found that use of scrap iron and steel instead of ore in the steelmaking process reduces air pollution effluents by 86 percent, and causes a 40 percent reduction in water use and 76 percent drop in water pollution.

Plant said another major aspect of the scrap industry's efforts will be to work against governmental policies that hinder use of scrap iron and steel.

He singles out, as an example, a decision earlier this year by the Department of Energy that "failed to develop a realistic recycling target" for the iron and steel industries.

"At a time when we desperately need to recycle and save energy, the government's industrial energy conservation program proposed an iron and steel recycling target one percentage point lower in 1987 than it is today," Plant said.

"The steel industry's current scrap use rate is 42 percent and a one percentage point decrease in recycling over the next seven years is obviously not a goal, but a mockery of the law. The department's action fails to follow Congress' instructions for maximum feasible increase in use of recovered material."

Other blocks to better use of scrap iron and steel include rail shipment rates, lack of tax incentives for ferrous scrap recovery use, and efforts to restrict exports of excess U.S. scrap. Plant contended.

He said it costs an estimated average of three times as much to ship scrap iron by rail as it costs to ship iron ore.

Tax depletion benefits, he said, are available to producers of iron ore, but none exist for those steel mills and foundries that recycle metallic scrap. The tax policy is discriminatory, Plant said, and "encourage mining irreplaceable natural resources while discouraging resource conservation efforts."

He concluded that scrap which cannot be sold must be used as waste.

IRISH POET TO GIVE TALKS IN THIS AREA

Sean Lucy, a noted Irish poet, will visit the SIUE campus and speak to students attending a class on Irish history tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Room 1307 of the Peck Classroom Building, discussing the role of poets, writers and dramatists in the Irish Nationalist movement.

On Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. Lucy will give a lecture on "Nationalism and Nationalism in Irish Literature." Sponsored by the department of English language and literature, the presentation will be given in Room 1412 of Peck. A reception will be held at the Faculty Club following the lecture. Both lectures are free, and the public is invited to attend.

1,668 persons killed on highways thus far

The Illinois State Police daily traffic accident fatality summary shows that there were 1,668 people killed on Illinois highways as of November 2, 1980. Of these, 924 occurred on Rural Highways.

During the month of October, 1980, there were 158 traffic fatalities. While total fatalities show an increase of 18, rural fatalities were 10 less than last year during the same period.

District Eleven has a total of 113 traffic fatalities, 13 of which occurred during the month of October. Captain Glenn H. Huffman, Commander, District Eleven, is utilizing two special programs in conjunction with normal district programs, in an effort to maintain compliance to the 55 MPH speed limit, and to further reduce injuries and fatalities.

These two programs, Concentrated Traffic Enforcement Program (CTEP), and the Concentrated Speed Enforcement Program (CSEP), are both Federally-funded programs which utilize off duty troopers. "By implementing these programs we are able to increase our available manhours without increasing our manpower," he said.

Center cares for injured and orphaned wild animals

By GARY SCHNEIDER

What would you do if you discovered a motherless baby raccoon, owl, hawk or other wild animal? Who would you turn to for help if you discovered a squirrel with a broken leg?

There never were any easy answers to these questions, so Adele Evans, a former Granite City resident, and her husband, Dick Evans, a veterinarian, founded the non-profit Treehouse Wildlife Center, Inc., in Brighton for the rescue and rehabilitation of animals in need. It serves Madison and Macoupin counties.

"We sort of fill the gap between the Humane Society and the Conservation Department," Mrs. Evans says, adding, "No one else does what we do."

She said the center, which has aided hundreds of wild animals, is supported by donations and by persons who buy $10 per year memberships, entitling them to receive the newsletter, "Tree House - Droppings."

The aim of the center is to prepare motherless or injured animals to return to the wild. "We take care of the animals until they are able to make it on their own," Mrs. Evans said.

Raccoons, for example, are taken to the Shawnee National Forest in Southern Illinois and are set free. "It always hurts to take an animal you have raised or cared for and turn him loose," she said. Her latest heartbreak came when she reluctantly realized that "Squirt," a raccoon she had raised from infancy, was ready to return to the wild. When she first got Squirt, his mother had been killed and he had pneumonia.

She explained she has "mixed feelings" in turning an animal loose. Although she is attached to all of the animals, there is a feeling of pride and happiness for the animals when they are well enough to be released.

Mrs. Evans fed him with a baby bottle and she and her husband gave him special treatment to cure him of the pneumonia. Months later, it was time for Squirt to return to the wild and he was released.

Since its formation about two years ago, the Treehouse Wildlife Center has taken care of 17 raccoons, including a litter of seven, found when they were a week old. Their mother had been killed and the Evans took the seven babies home with them, so they could be bottle fed four times a day. They were named after the Seven Dwarfs. Later, Sleepy, Doc, Dopey and the others were returned to the wild.

It also has returned rabbits, hawks, squirrels, a mockingbird, two pigeons and a dove to health and to new environments in the wild.

Sometimes even the love and the medical care the animals receive at the Treehouse center are not enough. One rough-legged hawk brought to the center had been shot and it was necessary for Dick Evans to amputate half of one of its wings.

Since it would have been impossible for the hawk to compete for food or survive in the wild, it had to be kept in captivity for two years. Finally, last Labor Day, health problems made it necessary to put the hawk away.

"Most wild animals do not do well in captivity. When people find wildlife animals, they usually do more harm than good, and they don't realize it. People who find wild animals should leave them outside. The change in temperature indoors is very hard on animals," Mrs. Evans explained.

Birds are frequently injured in storms. They wear themselves out attempting to fight against the strong winds and finally drop to the ground. Once down, they are too weak to fly again. The wildlife center works to strengthen them so they can fly again.

Food is always a problem at the Treehouse center, Mrs. Evans said, since attempts are made to give the animals what they would eat in the wild.

The hawks eat mice, the raccoons eat a special formula and the mockingbird will eat anything from worms to hamburger.

It is not unusual to find Mrs. Evans out catching grasshoppers or digging up worms for the animals.

The Treehouse Wildlife

Center is licensed by state and federal agencies to care for wild animals. She warned that it is illegal for individuals who find injured wild animals to attempt to nurse them back to health in their homes, without proper licenses.

The Humane Societies in the area are not the only contributors of animals to the Treehouse Wildlife Center. "A lot of people bring us a lot of different wild animals. We don't charge anything to take in a wild animal. We exist strictly on memberships and donations," she explained.

More members and additional donations would be welcomed, she said, noting that there are a lot of improvements she and her husband would like to make at the wildlife center.

"We need more cages and an incubator. We also would like to set up a diagnostic lab so we would be able to find out immediately what is the matter with the animals we receive," she noted.

Donations or memberships may be sent to the Treehouse Wildlife Center, Inc., Rural Route One, Box 125-E, Brighton, Ill., 62012, or the center can be reached by phone at 1-372-8092.

New home sewers must meet specifications

Madison County sewer district superintendent, Gene Futch, is recommending that persons who plan to install new home sewers to connect with the new Madison County sanitary sewers through Nameoki, Chouteau and Venice townships, follow the specifications for their materials carefully, or risk having the home sewer disapproved for tap-on.

Futch said persons purchasing their own plastic pipe should ask for six-inch PVC pipe with elastomeric seals, SRD (dimension ratio) 35, or better.

Joints should be ASTM D 3212, rubber, seal, with standard specifications for sewer joints using elastomeric seals.

Futch is recommending that the bed for the pipe contain two inches of rock under the pipe and halfway up its sides, using a three-eighth inch minimum rock size.

At least a six-inch drop in each 100 feet of pipe is recommended.

Contractors or persons wishing to view the complete ordinance regulating the installation of home sewers may contact Futch or Paul Bennett, foreman, at 831-3400 or 931-5401, or may obtain copies from the Madison County clerk's office in the county courthouse at Edwardsville, Futch said.

Futch or Bennett also may be contacted to determine the locations of "T" connections where the tap-ons will be made.

Where there was no "T" connector installed, such as where new houses have been constructed, the county will have saddles available to serve as connectors, Futch said.

Booklet will list services to area women

The regional Council on Inter-institutional Cooperation (CIC), a consortium of area colleges and universities working together to better conserve and utilize educational resources, has provided funds for the first step in developing a comprehensive directory of services available in the area for women.

The resource directory will contain a listing of various types of social and legal services, educational opportunities, and career advancement assistance.

It will also list contact persons for the programs and services, as well as approximate costs of the services.

Sources of traditional and non-traditional financial assistance will be contained in the directory, as well as other information for women seeking training or careers outside the home.

Sludge is non-hazardous, EPA rules

Hoping to end a controversy with the landfill where it dumps treated sludge, the City of Granite City on Thursday delivered a laboratory test report showing the sludge is non-hazardous under Environmental Protection Agency standards.

Terrance McMillan, superintendent of the city's wastewater (sanitary sewage) treatment plant, handed the Sverdrup and Parcel company's report to SCA Services, operator of the landfill.

The landfill began blocking trucks hauling sludge from the treatment plant Nov. 3, citing a mid-November federal deadline on certification of non-hazardous waste.

The city objected to the cutoff, which resulted in an accumulation of sludge outside the plant and consternation among neighbors of the treatment plant site, which is located at the Granite City Army Installation.

SCA permitted a resumption of hauling on Nov. 10, setting a new deadline of Nov. 15 which was met by the Nov. 13 delivery of the test report. A previous report had been filed with SCA by the city last spring.

City officials have wondered whether SCA might have another motive for the sludge cutoff, but SCA spokesmen insist they only were concerned about meeting federal requirements.

Describing future problems with the landfill as a possibility, some municipal officials indicate they will review the outlook at tomorrow night's City Council meeting.

How to select nursing home

By MARY RICHARDS
Illinois Department of Public Health

When the time comes to choose a nursing home, it is usually done in a crisis situation. Few people plan for retirement to a nursing home; many aren't even aware that there are different kinds of nursing homes.

A nursing home should be chosen on the basis of the patient's needs.

Your physician can best decide whether the patient should enter a skilled nursing, an intermediate care, or a sheltered care facility.

Once that decision has been made, make a list of those nursing homes in your area that meet the patient's specific needs.

Your doctor can suggest some homes, but you may also wish to consult your clergyman, senior citizen groups, relatives and friends.

When you have narrowed your list down to the facilities that provide the services needed, make appointments with the administrators for late-morning visits.

Spend at least an hour inspecting the physical condition of each facility.

Be particularly alert for potential hazards. There should be handrails in hallways and grab bars in bathrooms.

Chairs should be sturdy enough not to tip. There should be no throw rugs or small area rugs, nor should there be small objects on the floor over which a patient could trip.

Ask to see the home's last fire safety inspection. A home that has not been cleared for fire safety within the year should be marked off your list.

Inspect the kitchen while the noon meal is being prepared. Does it meet your standards for cleanliness? Is the food selection healthful? Does it look and taste appetizing?

The state health department's regulations require each bedroom to have a window and a door that opens into a corridor.

Each resident should have a nurse call bell, a drapery for privacy, and a reading light. There should be room enough to maneuver a wheelchair.

Probably the best indication of the suitability of the home will be the residents themselves. Ask for their opinion of the home.

Do most of the residents seem alert? Are they involved in group activities? Are they well groomed?

Make a checklist before you begin your visits to the nursing homes, and use it for comparison purposes.

Wilt disease killing pine trees in area

By RONALD CORNWELL
County Farm Adviser

Pine wilt disease is killing off pine trees in Illinois. The disease is caused by the pinewood nematode, and has been cited in 14 counties, as far south as Massac County and as far north as DuPage and Winnebago counties.

The nematode was first found in Illinois near Collinsville in late 1979. Pines are the only known hosts of the nematode, and in Illinois the disease appears to be most common in Scotch and Austrian pines. It essentially is limited to mature and nearly mature pines, which are attractive to the insect carriers.

The infection process in Scotch and Austrian pines is cyclical. In June and July, adult beetles carrying nematodes emerge from dead trees. Together, the beetles and nematodes infest healthy pines.

The nematodes reproduce rapidly and destroy cells, killing the trees. The beetles lay eggs under the bark of dead wood in the summer.

Beetle larvae and nematodes overwinter in the wood and emerge in the spring, with the beetles carrying the nematodes to healthy pines.

Species of affected pines with longer, softer needles show obvious wilt of needles over the entire tree, as if its moisture source had suddenly been cut off.

The most obvious symptoms are the sudden decline and death of the tree within a few weeks or months after the first sign of the disease has been noticed.

There are two preventive measures. One is to keep living trees vigorous and pruned of dead branches. This makes the trees less attractive to the beetles.

Also, burn or bury dead trees, because beetles can emerge from dead wood and fly several miles.

Byron a candidate for circuit judge

Madison County State's Attorney Nicholas G. Byron, who was defeated in his bid for reelection last week, announced yesterday that he has decided to apply for one of the four circuit judge vacancies which will be open in this district Dec. 1.

In his announcement, Byron said:

"After 11½ years of service to Madison County as state's attorney, I have decided that I would like to spend the rest of my life in continued service as a judge. I know I have earned a reputation for honesty, integrity and ability among my colleagues and those coming into contact with the justice system. As state's attorney, I was involved, not only with every aspect of criminal justice, but also in numerous areas of the state's attorney's function, which included civil matters as well."

"My two turns met the crime increase challenge to the criminal justice system successfully. Time will show how well my office met the challenge. The tremendous docket loads were handled efficiently and effectively, and today they are probably the most current in the state of Illinois. The criminal justice system was in no way compromised."

Having handled

thousands of matters with which the bulk of the court system is concerned, as a judge I feel I would bring with me a wealth of experience and ideas for the continued efficient administration of justice in Madison County.

"I have, therefore, informed Justice Joseph Goldenhersh (chief justice of the Illinois Supreme Court) of my candidacy for Circuit Judge of the Third Judicial Circuit," Byron's statement concluded.

The Supreme Court justices are responsible for filling the circuit judge vacancies.

Less GI Bill correspondence, flight assistance

Veterans taking flight training or correspondence courses under the GI Bill must pay a larger share of the costs under legislation now effective in October.

Both provisions were part of "The Education and Rehabilitation Amendments of 1980."

The Congressional action, approved by the president on Oct. 17, also increased GI Bill education allowances. Students who enroll in correspondence programs after Sept. 1, 1980, may receive 70 percent of the total charges for correspondence training from the Veterans Administration. Veterans in flight training are reimbursed 60 percent of the costs.

Those enrolled in either program on Sept. 1, 1980, or earlier will continue to get 90 percent of the total charges. The course provided the training is continuous and part of the same program of education. Flight training continues to be restricted to eligible veterans taking an approved course generally accepted as necessary to attain a recognized vocational objective in the aviation field. Flight students also must meet physical qualifications, and they must have earned a private pilot's license.

BODY ADJOURNED
On Aug. 1, 1982, the English Parliament was adjourned to Oxford because of the plague in Westminster.

NEW PASTIME. For one hour, between 3 and 4 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday, most of the patients' televisions at St. Elizabeth Medical Center are tuned to Channel 13 for the live show, TV Bingo. The show is produced by the Public Relations Department under the direction of video production engineer Bob Gill. SEMC's Auxiliary sponsors the show, supplies the volunteers and presents the prizes to the winners.

The mechanics of the show are simple. When admitted to the medical center, patients find a bingo card in their bedside table. During the show, from 10 to 12 games are played. When a patient has bingo, he is instructed to call the number given on the screen. The name and room number is taken and a prize is delivered to the room after the show. Vernon Brown, a patient, is shown with Head Nurse Bobbi Jones.

'Be prepared'—Veizer

Fearing that last winter's unusually mild weather in many areas may have lulled Granite City's motorists into a false sense of security about what can be ahead this year, Chief of Police Ronald J. Veizer issued early season warnings.

Unprepared motorists who could become hopelessly stuck or skid into accidents.

According to the chief and the International Association of Chiefs of Police, it's every driver's responsibility to be aware of the type of driving conditions he will encounter throughout the winter and to equip his car to protect his passengers and other drivers, as well as himself.

He referred to tests conducted for many years by the National Safety Council's Committee on winter driving hazards which have shown that the tires or traction aids used on your car are of vital importance under winter's snow and ice conditions, for instance.

For getting started and for keeping moving — tests show that conventional snow tires provide only a small improvement on ice (29 percent) over standard highway tread tires. Studded tires (where permitted) develop about three times the get-up-and-go. Reinforced tire chains provide about four times the pull of regular tires on ice, Veizer said.

On loosely packed snow, however, conventional snow tires provide half again as much pull as regular tires. Reinforced tire chains provide more than four times the pull of regular tires.

For Stopping — conventional snow tires are found to offer no advantage over highway tread tires on ice. Studded snow tires (where permitted) produce a 19 percent improvement; reinforced tire chains a 50 percent improvement on ice as compared with regular tires.

On loosely packed snow, snow tires offer a 13 percent improvement over regular tires; reinforced tire chains are 37 percent better than highway tread alone.

According to Chief Veizer, National Safety Council researchers have recently studied what happens when traction aids are used on front drive cars compared to their use on rear drive vehicles.

Based on preliminary tests, the committee found that when either studded tires or tire chains are used on the front wheels of front drive vehicles, improvements in stopping performance are generally similar in degree

Peppermint players prepare for tour

This is the 8th year for the Granite City High School North Peppermint Players. The director and founder of this unique group is Dr. Goni Michaeloff, speech department chairman at North.

The Peppermint Players are students enrolled in the Children's Theater classes at North each semester.

The Peppermint Girl and Peppies are leaders of the Peppermint Players, a children's theater touring group, that performs at the elementary public schools in Granite City School District 9.

The Peppermint Girl and Peppies introduce the play to the children. They also conclude the program with a special farewell. On occasion they have also served as special characters in the various productions over the years.

The productions are adaptations of classic children stories and sometimes the students write their own scripts. Students make most of their costumes, and build portable scenery pieces for the show.

This year, the Stagecraft class students will build the scenery pieces and properties for the productions.

Each North student enrolled in Children's Theater class has an acting part in the production. The newly selected Peppermint Girl is Lisa Salem, and Kim Woodward is a newly selected Peppie.

The other Peppies are: Lisa Randall, Carla Cunningham and Jeannie Trimmer.

Whenever a vacancy occurs, through graduation, a new Peppermint Girl or Peppie is selected at tryouts. Auditions include, round-offs, cartwheels, and acting of a children's story.

Once selected, the Peppermint Girl and Peppies remain as leaders of the Peppermint Players until their graduation.

The fall semester class tour will be on Friday, Dec. 12.

The two spring semester classes will tour one day each on April 9 and 10, 1981.

John P. Fishwick, chairman and chief executive officer, told a meeting of securities analysts in New York that "strong coal traffic, particularly export traffic, helped to offset the continuing impact of the recession on NW's merchandise traffic base."

Third quarter revenues from coal and coke hauling rose 22 percent over last year, while merchandise traffic revenues were down 10 percent from the year earlier period.

Fishwick said the market for export coal was strong because of a lengthy strike in the coal fields of Australia and a reduction in coal exports by Poland, both of which increased demand for American metallurgical coal.

NW originated 6.9 million tons of export coal in the third quarter, up 41 percent from 4.9 million a year earlier.

That gain more than offset essentially flat traffic patterns in steam coal shipments to utilities and a 20 percent drop in domestic metallurgical coal shipments.

Effect of Missouri Bingo may be minor in this area

The recent passage of Missouri Constitutional Amendment 3, allowing bingo in that state, may have little effect on the Quad-City area.

The amendment was passed by a margin of four to one in last week's election and allows legislation to legalize bingo for religious, fraternal and charitable organizations in Missouri.

Jim Ray, manager at the Madison County Firemen's Hall on U.S. Business 40 west of Collinsville, says he believes the change in Missouri law may spur more people to play bingo, rather than to change the present habits of players.

But Ray said he can't predict whether some of the folks from Missouri will now stay home to play. "I'm not worried about it," he told a reporter.

The Firemen's Hall has bingo five days a week, including on Sundays. A normal crowd is anywhere between 500 and 1,000 persons, Ray said. He isn't sure how many of those people cross the Mississippi to play.

The Sunday bingo at the hall is sponsored by the Edwardsville and Granite City fire departments; the Monday bingo is sponsored by the Hollywood Heights Fire Department; Tuesday is the Madison County Firemen's Association's own bingo night; Wednesday's bingo is for Assumption High School.

College may replace 80 striking teachers

In a resolution adopted Friday, the Belleville Area College board indicated it may seek to fire about 80 striking faculty members if they do not return to work by 7:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The strike began two weeks ago, and no return to work is planned this week, James Massey says. He is vice-president of the BAC chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

Some classes are continuing, taught by non-striking faculty members and by part-time instructors. BAC contends that its teachers are the highest paid community college faculty members in the state.

Teachers say there is no major disagreement on pay, but many of them object to the college's effort to increase the class workload.

College trustees Friday authorized Bruce Werner, interim president, to interview and hire replacements, extend the current semester, and reschedule or cancel classes. The AUP has urged binding arbitration on productivity issues. The BAC board has declined to accept this proposal. The two parties met Friday morning with a federal mediator but little progress occurred.

The board and administration contend that the productivity level should be made closer to the workload at other Downstate community colleges. The strikers say their academic freedom and civil liberties would be jeopardized.

A grant of $273,574 has been awarded by the U.S. Department of Education for continued support of the Upward Bound program at SIUE. The program is located at the East St. Louis Center and is designed to prepare minority high school students for careers in science, engineering and health fields.

Emil Jason, acting director of the center, said the curriculum includes biology, physics, chemistry, English, calculus, reading and computer science. "Students can pursue in any field they want with this kind of academic background," he commented Friday. Upward Bound is in its fifth year and currently involves 660 high school students.

Some harsh realities for women prisoners

By JAN LARSEN

DWIGHT — A group of buildings two miles west of Dwight on Illinois 7 look like they belong to a small and well-kept college campus. Quiet brick cottages from grander days of architecture are scattered among more modern structures on spacious acreage. Large oak trees grace manicured lawns.

Surrounding this pastoral scene is a high fence. It is topped with rolls of razor wire. This is no college. This is the Dwight Correctional Center, the only women's prison in Illinois and one of the 10 largest in the United States.

Originally built in 1929, the prison could house 100 women inmates. Before this, they would have to serve their sentences in county jails.

"The concept was a home-like environment where women could come to get their lives together," explained Warden Linda Giesgen. For that reason, pleasant dormlike rooms, spacious porches and kitchens were built into each cottage.

Today, about 340 will soon be joined by others. The population has increased by 300 percent in the last 10 years and is expected to increase another 300 percent by the year 1985.

The majority of women are in Dwight because of a violent crime, an offense like murder or armed robbery. Only a small percentage are in for crimes like prostitution or drugs.

Surprisingly enough, most are first-time offenders. "This seems to be a contradiction, but it isn't," said Warden Giesgen. "Historically, violent offenses involving women are situational — a one-time thing."

Once released from prison, the majority of women never return. About 15 percent of the inmates return because of parole violations. Only 5 percent have a prior state or federal conviction.

Most of the women are young (under the age of 30) and have children but no husbands. The majority are black.

Some critics of the correctional system say women criminals are victims of a bad economic situation or abusive husband or boyfriend.

But Giesgen disagrees. "People are responsible for their own actions. Society cannot say 'We'll accept that because your life was tough.'"

The FBI Uniform Crime Report says that the crime rate for women has increased 39 percent from 1969 to 1978. It has increased 55 percent for men during that time.

Some corrections experts believe as women become more equal and assume traditional male roles in society, they also take over the criminal roles.

Sid Edwards, warden at the Will County jail, agrees with this theory. "Years ago, women didn't care what they did today," he said. "Now women will do the same crime that a man does and think nothing of it."

But Edwards also disagrees. "I don't buy that theory at all. Women have been committing violent crimes for eons of time." But she said she does see an increase in crimes "reflecting the economic situation."

She adds, "Courts are making women more accountable. There are no more judges saying to the woman's husband, 'Take her home and make sure she doesn't do that again.'"

Once in prison, most expect to agree that women react differently to the situation.

"Women inmates are much more emotional than men," said Giesgen. "They don't group in gangs like men. Men may fight. Women cry."

Bob Buchanan was warden of Dwight from 1973 to 1974 and now heads a correctional consultant firm. He believes women have more problems adjusting to prison because they are separated from their children.

"Most male inmates aren't that upset at being apart from their children. For women, it is something to be ashamed of," he said.

What happens to the children when their mother goes to prison?

A study done at Dwight last April shows that only 7 percent of children of inmates were placed in foster homes through the Department of Children and Family Services. Of the 300 children surveyed, all but 20 were staying with relatives and friends.

Long sentences are rare at Dwight. No one there now has been there more than 10 years. But even a five-year sentence can seem like forever when your children are growing up.

United Way to report Nov. 24

The Tri-Cities Area United Way, Inc., has reached 75.2 percent of a total of $515,785 of its 1980 quota of $685,000, according to a breakdown of donations released last week at a report meeting.

The breakdown shows that Group A headed by George Moore as vice-chairman in the Nov. 5 report meeting reported $540, added to the previous group total of $3,363 for a new group total of $3,903 or 47.4 percent of its $8,225 quota.

The group represents service clubs, organizations and individuals.

Group B under Dr. Joe Bauer reported a new total of $15,267, added to the previous group total of $14,906 or 64.5 percent of the group's quota of $46,725. The group represents professional and private nonprofit agencies and organizations.

Group C under Christ Hoff reported an additional $8,577 added to the previous total of $13,044 for a new total of $22,021, or 55.1 percent of a $39,925 quota.

The group represents government employees.

Group D under Margaret Lee reported $16,983 added to a previous total of $21,575 for a total of $38,542 or 55.6 percent of the group's quota of $69,240. Group D represents business and commercial firms.

Group E under Robert Jackson reported $11,641 added to a previous total of $71,271 for a new group total of $82,912 or 63.3 percent of a quota of $130,885. The group represents the industry construction and transportation fields.

Group F under Jim Eisenbeis and Ed Reiske reported $181,100 added to a previous total of $281,335 for a total of $462,435, or 86.7 percent of a $533,000 quota.

The United Way officials will conduct another report session on Nov. 24.

Reviewing less than honorable discharge papers

Donald Ramsey, director of the Veterans Administration regional office in Chicago, has reminded former servicemen and women who received less than honorable discharges that 15-year periods may lead to eligibility for VA benefits in cases where former servicemen and women were previously ineligible.

Eligibility is based on discharge from the service under conditions other than dishonorable, Ramsey said, however, that upgraded discharges do not lead automatically, in all instances, to eligibility.

For example, discharges awarded as a result of unauthorized absence in excess of 180 days can result in ineligibility for VA benefits regardless of discharge review board action.

Boards for the Correction of Military Records, or the VA itself, may assist veterans to overcome this restriction if the veterans can show compelling circumstances in extenuation of such an absence.

Discharge review boards and correction boards are maintained by the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps.

Applications for such reviews may be obtained from any VA regional office and from national veterans' service organization in each community.

A free information package on the program may also be obtained by writing to: DOD Discharge Review, P.O. Box 21, St. Louis, Mo. 63166. Veterans should include their service number and branch of service.

Those winning prizes were Ann Kuzma, Rose Schmitt, Rose Merchoff, Maggie Buckingham, Anna Kuzma, Rahon Mateosian and Verna Michel.

Hostesses for the event were Matilda Martinez and Lennie Lore.

During the same week Linda Garcia, Rose Merchoff, Virginia Kittel, Josephine Vangel and Rose Schmitt presented the sickle, their gift to the hospital.

Accepting the chair were hospital representatives, Carol Gass, pediatric supervisor, Dianne Linsley, of the public relations department, Sister Mary Williams and Jim May.

Army exceeds recruiting goals in area

The U.S. Army St. Louis District Recruiting Command exceeded its active Army and Army Reserve enlistment goals substantially in the 1980 fiscal year, which ended Sept. 30, according to District Commander Lieutenant Colonel Joseph M. Lukitsch.

The U.S. Army St. Louis District Recruiting Command is responsible for active Army and Army Reserve recruiting in eastern Missouri and southern Illinois.

"We enlisted 4,407 individuals into the active Army this year," says Lt. Col. Lukitsch, "including 530 women. This represents a 26 percent increase overall and a 25 percent increase in women over our figures for 1979. We also enlisted 1,495 men and women into the Army Reserve—an increase of 17 percent over last year's figures."

The figures represent a 10.6 percent attainment of active Army goals and a 134.7 percent attainment of Reserve enlistments for the fiscal year. Nationally, the U.S. Army completed the 1980 fiscal year at 101.7 percent.

Cub Scouts plant tree

Cub Scouts of Pack 109, Lake County, sponsored by the PTA passed requirements for several projects by planting a flowering peach tree at the school.

Planting the tree went toward saving the wolf badge, bear badge, forester activity badge, the president's environmental award and the new award of world conservation.

The boys received instructions from Committee Chairman Elaine Grayson. Participating were, Den 2, Sonny Hankins, Donnie Goza, Scott Harrison, Daniel Grayson, Troy Camer, John Hughes, Jeff Boyles, Ricky Smith, and Pat Foote, Den leader.

Marine Sgt. James A. Laughlin, son of Harry D. Laughlin, Jr., of 5140 Lakeview Drive, Granite City, participated in exercise "Viking Marine."

He is a member of Battalion Landing Team based at Camp Lejeune, N.C. "Viking Marine," a small scale, joint training exercise that involved U.S. Marines and the Danish Army, was conducted in Zealand, Denmark. Elements of both commands were intermingled for cross-training, and a three-day field training exercise was conducted. Following the training, the Marines made port calls in England, Ireland, Holland, France, and Belgium.

A 1976 graduate of Granite City High School, Laughlin joined the Marine Corps in February 1977.

'Outsiders' may buy Eagle Park dwelling

Former residents of Eagle Park Acres and others living outside of Madison County, who are interested in purchasing a three-bedroom home, constructed by the Eagle Park Action Committee, may now submit applications, it was announced today.

Located on a 100-by-175-foot lot at 206 Terry St., the frame house features a full basement, a mudroom, a kitchen, a dining room, living room and three bedrooms. Its overall dimensions are 26 by 48 feet. The fully air-conditioned dwelling was built by the Community Action group, with funds made available through the Madison County Community Development Office.

A price of $43,000 has been set, which covers the cost of land purchase, materials and labor, according to Eddie Salmond, Action Committee president.

First priority to purchase the house was given to current residents of Eagle Park.

Prospective buyers must obtain their own financing, but the Action Committee will assist the purchaser and assist the lender as much as possible, Salmond said.

Persons interested may obtain a letter of intent to purchase from the Venice Township Office, 1502 Fifth St., Madison, as the initial step toward acquiring the dwelling. The committee president explained.

Petition would cut religion from airways

Madalyn Murray O'Hair, whose efforts successfully eliminated the use of Bible reading and prayer from all public schools, has been granted a Federal hearing in Washington, on the subject of religion and airways by the Federal Communications Commission.

This petition (No. RN2493) would ultimately pave the way to eliminate the proclamation of the Gospel to back her stand.

If her attempt is successful, All Sunday Worship Services currently being broadcast either by radio or television would cease. Many elderly persons and shut-ins, as well as those recuperating from hospital illnesses, depend on these broadcasts.

One million signed letters are needed to defeat Mrs. O'Hair's petition.

A letter objecting to the petition may be sent by individuals to the Federal Communications Commission, 1919 M St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Bell aids handicapped

By LT. GOV. DAVE O'NEAL

In an effort to help people with hearing and speaking difficulties use the telephone, the Bell System is providing a 24-hour operator service for people who communicate over phone lines via speech and hearing aids (TDAs).

Q. How can I use this new operator service?
A. By dialing a toll-free number, TDD users can phone any where in the continental United States and reach a special operator who will assist with person-to-person, collect, credit card and third-party calls. The number is 800-855-1150.

Q. How does this operator service work?
A. A TDD is a typewriter-like keyboard unit which is attached to the phone. Responses come either on a visual display terminal or on a printout. When the TDD caller reaches the special operator, he or she types the message to the operator, who has a similar device. Although the expanded operator service is provided by the Bell System, it also is available to callers dialing from non-Bell telephone company territories.

Q. Can a TDD user receive directory assistance?
A. Yes, the operator will help TDD users obtain numbers not listed in TDD directories. The special operators will also help when TDD callers reach a recorded announcement or have other difficulties making a call.

Q. Where can I obtain more information about TDD operator services?
A. TDD users can dial 800-972-9002 for more information. Those with long distance and hearing should dial 800-572-5062.

Write or call Lt. Governor Dave O'Neal's Senior Action Centers at 160 North LaSalle, Chicago 60601, or 3 West Old Town Mall, Springfield 62701, with questions or comments about any state government agency or program. Call statewide toll free 800-252-5555 or the number is 800-855-1150.

Pesticide examinations

Dates have been established for persons interested in taking exams for the commercial pesticide applicator and operator license.

Both the applicator and operator must pass the general standards exams or cord exam. The applicator must also pass the category specific exam.

The general standards exam or cord exam will take place in December. The locations closest to this area are the Holiday Inn, Mt. Vernon, on Dec. 10; Junior Livestock Building on the state fairgrounds in Springfield on Dec. 9; and the Rec-Arena at Champaign on Dec. 11.

Category specific exams will be given at the Urban Pesticide Dealers Clinic and the Agriculture Pesticide Dealers Clinic. The urban clinic will be held Jan. 15 at Belleville Area College. The agriculture clinic is scheduled for Feb. 15 at the Holiday Inn, Collinsville.

Plans were finalized for a pot luck Christmas dinner on Dec. 3 to be held at the center.

The president introduced a guest, Pat Marsh, and presented Mrs. Rahon Mateosian a birthday gift. Refreshments were served to 20 members and games were played during the social hour.

Those winning prizes were Ann Kuzma, Rose Schmitt, Rose Merchoff, Maggie Buckingham, Anna Kuzma, Rahon Mateosian and Verna Michel.

Hostesses for the event were Matilda Martinez and Lennie Lore.

During the same week Linda Garcia, Rose Merchoff, Virginia Kittel, Josephine Vangel and Rose Schmitt presented the sickle, their gift to the hospital.

Bright potential for a Rock Road industrial park

By BILL WINTER
of the Press-Record

A 127-acre industrial site on Rock Road in the Tri-City Regional Port area is "first class" in every way and is likely to be developed quickly, the local prayer breakfast group was told Wednesday.

In addition to meeting all criteria for water-related plant development, the tract here benefits from excellent port management and a progressive state legislature and governor, the Rotary-sponsored gathering was told at Charlie's Restaurant.

Speakers were John H. McCarthy, assistant manager, Planning Department; Sverdrup and Parcel and Associates; and Alfred H. Kerth III, community affairs officer, First National Bank in St. Louis.

Long deterrent cited was the tendency of governmental bodies in this metropolitan area to "toot their own horn" but to say little to industrial prospects about the portions of the region, the speakers said.

They added that the St. Louis bank, the Bi-State Development Agency, the Regional Commerce and Growth Association and others are endeavoring to promote all parts of the two-state area. An example cited was the bank's selection of five primary port-industry development sites, three are in Illinois, including the Tri-City Port industrial park.

Kerth said the financial institution is willing to buy revenue bonds, lend to private developers or invest directly in such projects to help make them a reality.

The Sverdrup firm was hired to pinpoint likely locations and probable corporate candidates, and McCarthy outlined its recommendations—five immediate development sites, five intermediate proposals and two long-range projects.

Both speakers described in glowing terms the performance of the Tri-City Port and the attitude of state legislators as State Senator Sam Vadalabene and State Representative Sam Wolf.

Sen. Vadalabene, who was in the audience, praised the role of Governor James R. Thompson in local progress. Carl A. Ranft, Tri-City Port general manager, said the district has been working for 20 years and has succeeded in packaging industrial sites economical to develop, in contrast to tracts that still require access improvements or utility installations.

Wednesday's program, moderated by Carl E. Mathias of Granite City, a Bi-State board member, began with Kerth's assertion that port area land offers the brightest economic development potential in the metropolitan area.

He said both private sector and governmental leadership is needed, but that his bank is willing to serve as a catalyst as well as a direct participant in various ventures; it is willing for others to shoulder phases of the task, as long as positive action occurs.

The bank sponsored a port development forum in May and has contacted 150 firms identified as possible users of area sites that link barge, rail and truck transportation. The forum dealt with fleetings, waterway use fees and harbor development as well as ways to attract water-related industry.

Mathias quoted Clarence C. Barksdale, chairman and chief executive officer of First Union Bank, as pushing for orderly and prompt port development in the 70-mile area encompassed by the Port of Metropolitan St. Louis. The RGA provides coordination and research for the seven port districts within the metropolitan port.

McCarthy said Sverdrup's three-month study spotlighted grain processing and handling, corn sweetener production, ethanol manufacture, fertilizer distribution, aluminum production, metals fabrication, coal distribution, petroleum terminals and chemical distribution as well-suited for St. Louis area sites.

In picking preferred locations, the planners considered immediate availability, with single ownership; desirability, including water, railway and road access; and site development costs, including highway connections and levee construction where required. From north to south, the primary sites chosen were the North Shore

Country Club land near Interstate 270 and Riverview Boulevard in St. Louis; St. Louis County; the Tri-City Port; an 82-acre Eagle Marine Corp. site and a 33-acre Cooper Fox terminal, both south of the MacArthur Bridge near Route 38 in Illinois; and 80-acre National Lead Co. property adjacent to Broadway in south St. Louis.

Intermediate development sites, again from north to south, were listed as 18 acres on the St. Louis north riverfront; a 58-acre Southern Railway site near the MacArthur Bridge in Illinois; a 40-acre St. Louis County quarry; Glen Park in Jefferson County, Mo.; and the Kaskaskia River in Randolph County, a site situated on Illinois Rt. 154 between Red Bud and Baldwin.

Tracts believed to have long-range potential are the St. Charles County Missouri-Mississippi river confluence site north of Columbia Bottoms, and Arsenal Island near Rt. 3 in Illinois.

"Much interest is developing," McCarthy said. Ranft called for intense effort, noting that prospects have "not yet begun beating on our door."

Kerth declined to give a development timetable but voiced the expectation that tangible results will be seen "very shortly."

He added that "many seeds are being sown, and we are working with a dozen prospects at present."

Ranft and Kerth agreed there is little or no Illinois-Missouri rivalry, and added that the direction in which products are to be shipped plays a key role in east-west site decisions.

While rail shipments that must cross the metropolitan area remain a problem from the standpoint of delays, a new report on railroad relocation plans is due early in 1981 and may lead to expediting of freight car movements, McCarthy said.

Ranft noted that port industrial revenue bond financing for this area has been simplified by state approval of a flexible interest rate equal to 70 percent of the Illinois prime rate.

Kerth concluded that growing attention being given nationally to multi-modal transportation centers such as the Tri-City Port.

Prisoners not transferred faster, freeing deputies

A program aimed at leaving Madison County sheriff's deputies free to patrol during the night hours, rather than spending much of their time picking up prisoners at various city jails for transfer to the Madison County Jail, was implemented Monday.

Under the new program, a deputy and a transportation aide in a specially-designed van are "making the rounds" of city jails during the daytime, picking up prisoners, according to Major Fred Bright, administrative assistant to Sheriff Emil Toffant.

Formerly, when a deputy on patrol in the Mitchell area, for example, was notified at 2:30 a.m. that there was a prisoner in the Granite City Jail awaiting transfer to the county jail, that deputy had to stop patrolling, drive to the Granite City Police Building, fill out the necessary transfer forms, drive the prisoner to the county jail at Edwardsville, wait there until the prisoner was processed and then the deputy could drive back to the jail.

That was going on nightly in various parts of the county, decreasing the number of deputies on patrol, Bright explained.

Another improvement planned soon is the standardization of forms and procedures used at city jails for prisoner transfers, speeding up the time deputies spend at the city jails and at the county jail, where the work now has to be duplicated, Bright said.

A meeting is to be held with city chiefs of police in the near future on the proposed new forms and standardized transfer procedures, but all of the chiefs are "very receptive" to the new system, he added.

Although there are some costs involved in the new program, the sheriff's department will not be asking the Madison County Board for additional funds for the new transfer program, Bright said, noting he feels there are sufficient funds available in the current Sheriff's Department budget.

Increased efficiency and shorter processing time for the prisoners should offset most of the costs involved, he added.

The new system also should help smaller cities and villages, which find it difficult to hold prisoners overnight and then to drive them to court appearances and return them to jail until the sheriff's department can pick up the prisoners.

More prisoners now should be making their court appearances in Edwardsville after spending the night in the county jail, Bright added.

Plans for new Boy Scout troop

Parents and boys residing in Eagle Park, who are interested in the formation of a new Boy Scout troop, are invited to attend an organizational meeting at 6 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 15.

The public meeting will take place at the Eagle Park Improvement Association Hall, 100 Hill St.

The new troop for boys 11 through 15 years will be sponsored by the Eagle Park Action Committee, according to Ed Salmond, president.

Those helping to organize the scouting group are Richard Spillars and Leroy Jones.

All youth and adults interested in scouting are invited to attend, Salmond said.

20 speed limit for Clark is proposed

Whether to establish a 20 miles per hour speed zone on Clark Avenue between Maryville Road and Johnson Road is under study and will be considered at a future City Council meeting.

The plan advanced by Seventh Ward Alderman Michael Modrusis is described as an alternative to the installation of a series of stop signs.

With the completion of Maryville Road, use of Clark Avenue by motorists has increased and there is concern for the safety of children playing near the street, Modrusis told fellow aldermen last week.

The proposal was referred to council committees and the city engineer for a recommendation.

Referral carried on a 10-1 vote after First Ward Alderman Charles Douglas first asked where Clark Avenue is located and then objected because the council had not received advance word of the proposal.

Aldermen Lloyd Bailey and Margaret Nott were absent. Modrusis said he had asked City Attorney John Papa to prepare an ordinance on the speed limit.

Alderman Everett Morlen of the First Ward initially opposed the proposed speed limit in the belief that it involved speed bumps. He withdrew his protest when assured that no bumps are planned.

Third Ward Alderman Roy Poulos asked that, in accord with aldermanic courtesy, such proposals be submitted to the Traffic Committee before being introduced on the council floor.

Alderman Douglas criticized verbatim presentation of ordinances as written by the city attorney without council members having had a chance to suggest revisions, but Second Ward Alderman

Sam Whitmer voiced direct opposition to the rationale outlined by Douglas.

Whitmer stressed that aldermen want to hear a proposal in the exact form that appears suitable to the attorney, after which they can suggest changes. He expressed support or opposition during a council meeting. Otherwise, the council would be unsure of who has had input, and what that input was, on specific proposals that come up for a vote, he added.

Rehabilitation program for lung ailments planned

Mike Range, director of cardiopulmonary services at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, was a guest speaker at the Madison-Venice Rotary, outlining the pulmonary rehabilitation program which is tentatively scheduled to open in December.

The program will benefit those who suffer from one of the four basic types of chronic obstructive lung disease — emphysema, chronic bronchitis, asthma and small airways disease.

Range said there has been "increased interest" in preventive medicine by the medical community. This is a reaction to the fact that the death rate from pulmonary disease has doubled every five years for the past 20 years, and the government is spending millions of dollars every year in disability payments.

"SEMC will work with chronic lung disease patients to maximize their living functions."

"Just being able to stand up and take a shower can be a challenging experience to a patient, so reconditioning and strengthening the muscles are major priorities."

"The program also seeks input from family members to encourage the patients to become self sufficient and reach the ultimate goal of a full and satisfying life in the community."

Historical museum has new schedule

New hours at the Madison County Historical Museum, 715 N. Main St., Edwardsville are: each Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; and each Sunday, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The museum has eight exhibit rooms housed in a 1836-era restored Federal style home. There are period rooms, historic costumes, and quilt and coverlet exhibits.

Many exhibits pertain to Madison County history and Indian and pioneer artifacts. There are changing displays and reference library is maintained.

Individual tours are offered anytime. The suggestion is to call ahead for group tours, at 656-7562. No charge for admission is collected.

Slide presentations available for groups are: "Museum Artifacts," "Firearms of the Frontier," "Suiting Everyone," and "Museum Costume Collection."

TV film on region

The first segment of "East Side Story II," a three-part television documentary on the Madison-St. Clair counties area, is nearing completion.

The remaining segments are in various stages of completion, according to John Regnell, director of Broadcasting Services at SIUE.

Regnell expects all production work to be completed on the series by the end of this month. The documentary consists of three 30-minute television segments to be aired by KETC-TV Channel 9, in the near future. Steve Clement of Broadcasting Services directs the production and Patricia Higgins is assistant producer.

"East Side Story II" is being underwritten by a grant from the Illinois Humanities Council. Ed Hudlin, assistant professor of philosophical studies at SIUE, is project director.

A third generation East St. Louisan, he is a descendant of the Hudlin family that settled in St. Louis County almost 200 years ago. He is a co-author of "East Side Story I," a television program produced by KETC-TV several years ago. "East Side Story II" is a sequel to the earlier documentary.

Hudlin said that after the production of the first film, there was great interest within the community for a follow-up which would deal with various problems of the area from a historical perspective.

The first segment of "East Side Story II" traces the development of Southern Illinois from its pioneer days to the present. Filming began last July at the Holy Family Church in Cahokia, a structure more than two centuries old.

The second program deals with issues and problems that occurred during that period, including East St. Louis' evolution as a steamboat and rail center, corruption in various administrations, and labor and industrial problems leading to the race riot of 1917.

The third program gives the visions of modern day pioneers who have presented plans for future cultural, social and economic growth.

These plans range from the visionary designs of Buckminster Fuller, calling for a futuristic city to be built under one of his famous geodesic domes, to a plan for a marine city with luxury hotels and resorts that would permit the area to change its role from transportation to tourism.

ARTWORKS DISPLAYED AT GOSHEN GALLERY

Artworks created by Kay M. Pick Zivkovich and William T. Livesay will be exhibited on the University Center's Goshen Gallery walls at SIUE until Dec. 5.

Sponsored by the Films and Visual Arts Committee of the University Center Board, the exhibit is free and open to the public from 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 7:30 a.m. to midnight Friday, 9 a.m. to midnight Saturday, and 5 to 10 p.m. Sunday. The two artists are graduates of SIUE Carbondale.

Cracks are costly. Caulking is cheap.

Houses tend to settle as they grow older. When they do, tiny cracks open around door and window frames. A few of these cracks let as much cold air into your house as a partly opened window. And there goes the heating bill!

Sealing those cracks with caulking is an easy, inexpensive, do-it-yourself job. A caulking gun is best, but you can also use caulking strips you press into place with your fingers or a putty knife. Your hardware dealer or home center has the easy-to-use materials you need, plus complete instructions. And right now is the best time of year to caulk your home and stop those costly air leaks. Caulking, plus adequate insulation and weatherstripping, will pay off in energy and dollars saved. For more information, call our Energy Use Advisor.

Where to caulk on the outside of your home:

- between window frames and siding
- where one siding strip meets another
- at corners, where wall meets wall
- around outside water faucets and electric outlets
- between chimney bricks and siding
- around outside vents

Parents learn by listening

Marking of street lanes proceeding

By CATHERINE MAUCK
Home Economics Editor

"No one really listens to me!" Children in particular sometimes have this feeling. Parents should be aware of how taking time to listen and to encourage self expression helps maintain good communication between them and their children.

Listening gives parents the chance to understand better how children's thinking abilities and ideas are changing and progressing. Consider the following tips on how to listen more effectively to children.

—Be interested and attentive. Children can tell if they have attention by the way parents do or don't reply. Showing interest in children and their activities encourages children to express their feelings and make them feel important.

—Encourage talking about experiences. Some children need an invitation to start talking. Children are more likely to share their ideas and feelings when others think them important.

—Listen patiently. With limited vocabulary and shorter memory spans, young children often take longer than adults to find the right word. Hurrying children or calling attention to the use of the wrong word while they are talking upsets and confuses them.

—Hear children out. Avoid cutting children off before they have finished speaking. By letting children develop their ideas fully, parents also gain valuable insight into children's understanding and abilities to reason.

—Reflect children's feelings. One of the most important skills of a good parent is the ability to put oneself in another's shoes and to imagine what they are experiencing apart from your own thoughts and feelings.

Parents can reflect children's feelings by saying, "I understand this is how you feel." Children often feel more understood when parents accept and recognize children's feelings as real.

—Listen to non-verbal messages. Many messages children send are communicated by their tone of voice, the look on their faces, their energy level, body posture or changes in behavior patterns. Parents often can learn more from the way children say things than from what they say.

—Set positive examples. Parents who listen to their children with interest, attention and patience set a valuable example.

When topics are important to children, and parents take interest in them, the parents are the greatest audience children can have.

The City of Granite City is playing catch-up on painting streets and lanes on municipal streets due to the failure of state crews to perform promised thermoplastic marking at the speed that had been indicated, aldermen said at last week's City Council session.

Alderman Roy Poulos urged expediting of painting at Niedringhaus and Edison avenues, and Alderman Warren Decatur cited painting work needed at the Nameki Road intersection with Niedringhaus Avenue to permit free parking by handicapped persons.

It was noted that the city attorney is conferring with the Land of Lincoln Legal Aid Society on ways of improving access to council meetings for handicapped persons.

It was decided to establish a no-parking zone on 20th Street at the Public Library and to designate pedestrian crosswalks.

In other business, City Inspector Emerald Daves suggested hiring Robert Gray, a part-time employee, as a full-time sanitation worker. Alderman Sam Whitmer, Sanitation Committee chairman, asked that council members study the proposal and decide at the Nov. 18 meeting.

Daves said the employee is qualified and licensed to handle mosquito spraying equipment and also could be helpful in supervising Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) workers.

He would be hired as a Teamster and would be paid $16.80 yearly. Daves ordered the City of Granite City to hire a South-Western Cable TV has agreed to extend cable service to the North Granite area as soon as authorization is obtained from railroads to install a cable beneath the 25th Street railroad crossing. Approval is expected later this month, he noted.

The council accepted a $407 payment from South-Western as three percent of its $13,980 revenue for July, August and September. The firm said it is serving 1,395 Granite City customers.

A letter from police alleged that the owner of the Long Branch Tavern fired an automatic pistol into the air Oct. 21 to quell a fight in the tavern. City Attorney John Papa asked that the report be filed and said the occurrence probably did not warrant punitive action.

Alderman Poulos cosponsored a bill for FEDERAL AID FOR ILLINOIS REFUGEES. Applications for about 1,000 Cuban and Haitian entrants in Illinois will be processed following receipt of federal notification that the public assistance for the refugees will be underwritten totally by federal dollars.

The applications were delayed by the Illinois Department of Public Aid pending a determination by the federal government of their legal status.

CUB UNIFORMS NEEDED. Cub Scout and Boy Scout uniforms are needed to equip boys that can not afford them. Scout leaders are asking anyone that has a used uniform they would like to donate to a "good deed" and take it by the Boy Scout Service Center, 2016 Delmar Ave.

Changes in state's attorney's office likely under Weber

State's attorney-elect Don Weber of Collinsville says it will be about two weeks before a final decision is made on who goes and who stays when he takes office Dec. 1.

But already it is apparent that seven current members of the state's attorney's office will be taking jobs elsewhere.

This list includes administrator Dewey Van Dyke and assistant state's attorney Steve Mudge, Randy Hale, Dick Allen, Don Smith, Larry Keshner and Ted Diaz.

Last Friday, Weber said Mudge has informed him that he is leaving. Hale had planned to leave regardless of the outcome of last week's election.

In that election, Weber, a Republican, defeated Nicholas Byron, the Democratic incumbent, by a slim margin.

During the campaign, Weber had indicated that if elected he would not be retained if he won election.

Weber said he will appoint a new administrator to replace Van Dyke. Byron didn't need an administrator because he didn't try cases and had the time to administer himself.

Weber declined Friday to say when he will resign as Collinsville street commissioner, the post he has held for a year and one-half ago.

Meanwhile, Byron said there are several possible courses of action he may pursue when he leaves office next month.

One option under consideration is applying for one of the four judgeships open in the third judicial circuit, Byron said Friday.

Another possibility is returning to the Illinois General Assembly in two years, he said. He has rejected a suggestion from someone in St. Clair County that he run for Illinois attorney general.

Returning to private legal practice is a possibility, too, he said.

Byron noted that he has passed the day-to-day operation of the state's attorney's office into the hands of four top assistants while he ties up loose ends.

The four assistants are Rich Ryback, Steve Mudge, Keith Jensen and Susan Jensen.

Weber said he will need an administrator because he plans to spend 75 percent of this time in plea bargaining and prosecuting cases.

Assistant state's attorney Bob Trone will stay on, Weber said. Another Byron assistant, Keith Jensen, is expected to be retained and Stephanie Robbins, a former assistant state's attorney fired by Byron, is expected to return to the department, although Weber says these decisions haven't been made as yet.

Weber wants to employ a black assistant state's attorney; he isn't revealing the name of the person he has in mind. He also is planning to hire an assistant trained in white collar crime, Weber told a reporter.

Weber said he is going to have expedited trials, a more active grand jury, a bad check program and will be returning to the department rather than probation for hard-core juvenile criminals and home burglars.

Weber declined Friday to say when he will resign as Collinsville street commissioner, the post he has held for a year and one-half ago.

Meanwhile, Byron said there are several possible courses of action he may pursue when he leaves office next month.

One option under consideration is applying for one of the four judgeships open in the third judicial circuit, Byron said Friday.

Another possibility is returning to the Illinois General Assembly in two years, he said. He has rejected a suggestion from someone in St. Clair County that he run for Illinois attorney general.

Returning to private legal practice is a possibility, too, he said.

Byron noted that he has passed the day-to-day operation of the state's attorney's office into the hands of four top assistants while he ties up loose ends.

The four assistants are Rich Ryback, Steve Mudge, Keith Jensen and Susan Jensen.

Weber said he will need an administrator because he plans to spend 75 percent of this time in plea bargaining and prosecuting cases.

While that definition implies a wide latitude of reference, I don't recall ever seeing it used outside a sexual context—not "white" chauvinism or "black" chauvinism. And the women's liberation writers were always careful to specify "male" chauvinism.

The letter-writer, however, omits the all-important modifier, thus leaving us uncertain as to whether or not the male chauvinism is male chauvinism, or an act of super-patriotism.

"Sexist" is a better word. COOLDIDGE WON'T RUN. On Aug. 2, 1927, President Coolidge announced that he would not run for re-election.

Blind student hopes to be a counselor

Awarded a Braille wristwatch by the American Council for the Blind this fall, Paul Saboff, a senior at SIUE, became blind three years ago in a gun accident.

At that time, he was a registered X-ray technician at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City.

"I can still legally push an X-ray button, but none of the machines at hospitals in this area are automatic enough for me to use," he said.

Within nine months after his accident, Saboff went back to college. Most blind people take longer to adjust to the loss of their vision, but by the time he re-entered college, he had learned the Braille language and was able to operate a Braille typewriter. He could also use a cane.

Working toward a degree in human services, Saboff wants to go into counseling because he believes "it's an easy thing for a blind person to listen to people. I wouldn't have to type or file things—just listen."

He first obtained an applied science degree from Belleville Area College and has already earned 100 quarter hours of credit at SIUE. In some quarters, his schedule is full.

This summer, he completed 30 hours of classes and was home only to sleep and to answer the phone," he recalls.

Saboff was physically active before he was blinded; now he complains that he can't even walk fast. "I have a two-second bicycling time but I can't always find people who want to ride with me," he comments.

There is at least one occasion when Saboff attempted to ride his bicycle into town. "I tried to take the bike path alone, but there are too many curves to learn," he relates. One winter, he got lost on the trail and suffered frostbite.

In addition to attending classes and figuring out new ways to do things he once did with the aid of his eyes, Saboff is involved in community activities.

He serves as secretary on the board of directors of the Madison County Association of the Blind and is a member of the Illinois Federation of the Blind. He is also a local state and national member of the American Council of the Blind.

Saboff has not only mastered the Braille language for his own use, but has spent many hours helping teach others to cope with a darkened world.

His community involvement includes teaching Braille to a blind and deaf woman in an area nursing home. He also spends much of his time entertaining people in nursing homes with his guitar.

In addition, he puts in about 24 hours each week working on the hotline for the crisis intervention center for drug abuse in Collinsville.

Saboff was awarded the watch at the Council's annual conference held in Louisville, Ky.

One of six such awards made nationally, it was based on involvement in organizations for the blind and community programs by blind college seniors.

May move GC scout office

By MICK STRANGE
of the Press-Record

Leaders of the Cahokia Mound Council, B.S.A. learned for the first time Monday evening that plans are being made to move the Boy Scout office away from Granite City.

At the group's annual meeting a task force committee report read as follows: "It is suggested that within 5 years the council would build a new office building, or acquire a new office facility somewhere near the center of the council, in a triangle area located between Edwardsville, Troy and Collinsville. Somewhere on a good site, preferably, fronted on an interstate highway, for visibility for Scouting.

"It is hoped the council can acquire 3 acres of land in a parklike setting. It is intended that the facility would include approximately 1,500 square feet of a ranch type building, residential construction, brick and wood type facility.

"Estimated at a cost of $60,000 for the upper level, $22,500 for the lower level and $14,000 for acreage, at a total cost of $96,500.

"The facility would be an upper-level level, basement type, meeting rooms that could include a small kitchen and meeting room for approximately 40 people to be used as training facilities for unit leaders, and other type training.

"The facility would be financed through a capital fund drive, and also from the sale of the present quarters. "We are hopeful that this project could be accomplished within the 5 year frame.

"There would be parking for 50 cars."

Members of the committee submitting the report are: Ralph Korte, of Highland, the council president; Ed Blaine, of Troy, and Leo Schermer, of Granite City.

The Cahokia Mound Council was officially chartered in January 1920 and has had the main office in Granite City for the past 60 years.

In the Quad-Cities area (Union District) as of October 1980 there were 1,160 boy members; in the Kickapoo District (Bond County) 550 boys, and in the Illinois District (Collinsville-Edwardsville area) 962 boys.

Officers of the council for 1981, submitted by the nominating committee, and elected in total were:

Arrest four in fire, burglary; fifth sought

A $17,000 fire which destroyed part of the residence of Dorothy Taton, 1635 Edison Ave., at 11:35 p.m. Nov. 10, was deliberately started in an effort to destroy evidence of a burglary, it is alleged by Granite City police detective, who is responsible for successfully solving the case.

Chief of Detectives Robert Astorian credited Detective Craig Nonn with compiling sufficient evidence to allow warrants and petitions to be issued this week against five individuals.

"Det. Nonn did a very good job," Capt. Astorian said, noting the difficulty involved in solving the crime by parts of the dwelling being gutted by fire.

Two men and three youths are implicated in the alleged arson and burglary. Arrested Monday on informations and warrants issued by the Madison County state's attorney's office were Kevin Dean Catthers, 18, of 1507 Market St., Madison, who is charged with one count each of burglary and arson, and Vernon G. Rieffle, 18, of 1736 (rear)

Venice teachers, board 'close' on contract

By VALERIE EVENDEN
of the Press-Record

Hopes for a settlement in the contract negotiations between the Venice Board of Education and Venice Local 965, American Federation of Teachers, finally have taken an upswing Monday night when a new offer was made by the district officials to the teachers' negotiating committee, it was learned.

The union negotiating team, which includes Marianne Hay, Local 965 president, met with the full board prior to its regular business session and members indicated they will recommend approval of the board's latest offer to the local's membership, a spokesman for the officials advised.

Although declining to give details, the officer said "We appear to be very close... (to settlement)."

Monday was the third time the union negotiators have met with the full board, rather than meeting with the district's personnel committee, it was learned.

An impasse in negotiations developed in late September and Local 965 members placed informational pickets outside the school buildings.

The 1979-80 contract between the Venice School District and Teachers Local 965 expired June 30. It had been ratified only last November.

The teachers, however, returned to the classroom Aug. 25, despite the lack of a working agreement.

Contract negotiations had been going on all summer and communications remained open between the two groups even though the informational picketing continued about a week.

A proposed agreement was presented to the union by the board in early September, but it was rejected by the local's membership at a meeting Sept. 16.

In action at Monday night's meeting, Alvester Salmond was seated as a new board member. She was appointed to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of James E. Turner who resigned in September to continue his education.

Jack Tolliver, board president, welcomed Mrs. Salmond and said, "We are glad to have you with us. I hope you will call upon myself, Supt. Vickers or any of the board members if we can assist you in any way."

The Venice board's newest member is a licensed practical nurse, employed at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

She is a lifelong resident of the Quad-Cities and attended Lincoln School in Venice from the first through the 10th grades and graduated from Madison High School.

School dairy dispute is heating up in GC

By BILL WINTER
of the Press-Record

A confrontation between advocates of Reeb's Dairy and Prairie Farms Dairy escalated Tuesday night as Granite City School Board members debated the awarding of bids on milk shake mix.

A decision was postponed until a special board meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday, Nov. 25.

Also to be considered at the Nov. 25 session are a proposed rental fee for unused Stallings Elementary School, and possible restoration of a student teaching program in cooperation with Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. The present student teaching in Granite City District Nine schools is provided by Greenville College.

Prairie Farms had been the school district's milk supplier for a number of years until 1980-81, when Reeb's succeeded in submitting the low bid. Board Member David Partney later proposed that the district switch back to Prairie Farms, but other board members said at the time there was no legal way to reverse the action unless there was a failure to perform bid requirements. Partney said Tuesday night the district had failed to obtain competitive bids on milk shake mix, and Cafeteria Director O. L. Overhulser said these purchases had automatically been made from the milk vendor for at least the last eight years.

School Supt. B. J. Davis said that when administrators became aware that no bids had been obtained on milk shake mix, a bid request was issued Nov. 4. Three bids were opened at 3 p.m. Monday, Nov. 17, and Davis was willing to make a recommendation on them Tuesday night, he told the board. Partney began the discussion by assailing scheduled payment of bills including Reeb's Dairy payments that he alleged were mostly for milk shake mix used by the two high schools and three junior high schools. He told of personally visiting Prather Junior High to check on the amount of shake mix on hand there.

Venice cuts off outside fire calls

By MICK STRANGE
of the Press-Record

The Venice City Council voted Tuesday evening to stop making any fire calls outside the incorporated area of the City of Venice, effective Monday, Dec. 1.

"This action was taken by the city council, who charge that Venice Township owes them $18,000 in unpaid fire calls.

If the bill is not paid in full by Dec. 1 by Venice Township, there will be no fire protection for the Tri-City Regional Port Authority, the Benjamin addition or Eagle Park Acres.

According to Venice city officials, Venice Township owes the city $10,800 for fire calls in 1979, and as of November 1980 owes another $7,200 for unpaid fire calls, making a total owed of $18,000.

Venice charges $300 for fire calls outside the city limits.

Art department head authorized

The Granite City Board of Education decided Tuesday night to create the position of secondary schools art department head for the spring semester.

The individual will teach four classes and will devote one hour a day to departmental duties and one hour to preparation. Four percent will be added to his or her base salary.

The department head will coordinate budgeting and the distribution of art supplies at the two high schools and the three junior high schools.

The individual also will evaluate teachers in the department and strengths and weaknesses of curriculum programs and instruction materials; help develop and implement new concepts, methods and techniques; and promote an atmosphere of inquiry for identifying student needs which may require curriculum revisions.

The board accepted the resignation as Granite City South head football coach of Stan Wojcik, who will remain on the faculty.

In other extracurricular decisions, the board named Michael Garland as new South assistant wrestling coach and Vincent DeLeonardis as Coolidge Junior High assistant boys' basketball coach.

Mrs. Doris Stark, a school social worker, was granted an extension of her temporary disability leave for the spring semester.

An illness leave was approved for Angela Buehler, a Grigsby Junior High cafeteria employee, for Nov. 17 to Jan. 2.

The board accepted with regret the retirement of Mrs. Catherine Wittverongel, effective Dec. 31, as Parkview Elementary School secretary.

In view of its decision to eliminate aptitude testing of applicants for school custodial jobs, the board authorized Supt. B. J. Davis to include on the active list both those who passed and failed the test.

Job applicants are required to report annually that they are still interested in school work, in order to have their requests remain in the active applicant file.

Metro East Lutheran High School was authorized to use the Johnson School gymnasium Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 3:30 to 5, and the Logan School gymnasium Thursdays from 3:30 to 5. Basketball practice for boys and girls is planned by the regional Lutheran school.

The board accepted a gift of two park benches from the Niedringhaus School Parent-Teacher Association.

Also accepted was a $477 donation from the South Band Parents Association for 18 flags to be used in conjunction with the South band.

It was noted that, although overall enrollment continues to decline—from 10,544 Oct. 1 to 10,514 on Oct. 31—attendance remains high at 95.36 percent.

As the administrative district for Madison County Special Education Region I, the Granite City Board of Education granted permission to offer an SIUE extension course, pending approval by contact people regarding appropriate financing; approved submitting a grant application for a job fair in the 1980-81 school year; and authorized physical therapists and occupational therapists to be paid on a regular basis, as long as services have been provided.

Permission was given to place a 15-year-old student at the Chaddock Boys School, Quincy, Ill. He is currently at the St. Vincent's Division of the DePaul Community Health Center, and previously attended the Madison County educational therapy center conducted at Stallings School and the Easton School, Alton.

She had been ill four years and in the hospital seven days.

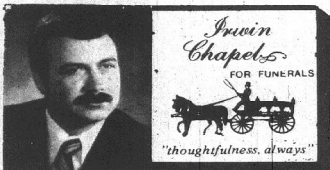

Mrs. Minks is survived by her husband, Robert Minks; a daughter, Mrs. William (Donna) Keck of Elwood, Ill.; a son, Kenneth R. Smith of Belleville; two brothers, Malcolm Grant of Sikeston, Mo.; and six grandchildren.

News notes

The Blair School Parents Club will hold a benefit chili supper from 4 to 7 p.m. tomorrow, Nov. 21, in the Blair multi-purpose room. Mrs. Angela Smith, president, reports. Tickets costing $1.25 will be sold at the door.

Speaking on behalf of the Granite City Board of Education at its meeting Tuesday night, President Steve Saltich congratulated the GCHS South soccer team on achieving its fifth consecutive statewide championship. He described the squad as "fantastic." Individual letters of appreciation will go to the Warrior athletes.

David Nolan, a Granite City Park District commissioner, has been appointed to an additional two-year term as one of Madison County's five representatives on the 30-member Regional Forum of the West Gateway Coordinating Council.

Illinois state police aircraft will conduct air speed checks of traffic on Interstate 64 a mile east of Route 157 from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 23 and 28 and Dec. 1. A similar speed check is planned for I-270 a half-mile east of Route 111 Dec. 5 from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The registered professional nurse examination administered by the state will be given at SIUE July 8 and 9, 1981.

Illinois highway deaths in October totaled 158, compared to 189 in October 1979. The 10-month total of 1,409 exceeds the 1,636 recorded in January-October 1979. In the October fatalities, 13 pedestrians were killed, plus three bicyclists, five persons in railroad crossing accidents, and ten in crashes involving motorcycles.

New federal rules restricting dumping of toxic wastes went into effect Wednesday.

Estimates show it would cost $35,000 to $40,000 to place a screen over the top of an exercise yard to improve security at the Madison County Jail. The 110-capacity jail has been in use for five months, and the number of prisoners reached as many as 116 on one occasion this fall, requiring transfer of women prisoners to the Clinton County jail.

Stephanie Robbins, a former assistant state's attorney, will resume her duties with that office on a part-time basis after new State's Attorney Donald Weber begins his term Dec. 1. Weber is giving up his seat on the Collinsville City Council, but Mrs. Robbins plans to remain an Edwardsville alderman. Both have been dismissed by the outgoing state's attorney upon being elected to municipal positions.

Alleging a smear campaign was conducted against them, petitions now being circulated call for the appointment of Victor Mosele and John DeLaurenti as circuit judges. They lost retention elections Nov. 4.

A Congressional hearing on the need for a second new lock at the Alton lock and dam replacement project has been postponed from today until January.

Edwardsville Mayor Steve Ellsworth told aldermen there Tuesday night he won't seek re-election.

Partney maintained that the mix purchases were a departure from past practice, but Supt. Davis, the district's top administrator for more than 14 years, responded that "it has never been bid."

"I explained this at the last board meeting," the superintendent said, and this was confirmed in comments by Board Members George Moore and Thomas Miosky.

Miosky said, "This was brought up at the last board meeting and fully explained." Supt. Davis said the mix purchases amounted to about 60 percent of the Reeb's payments on the latest bill list, and Partney estimated the figure at 80 percent, counting only the five secondary schools.

Bills including $22,800 from Reeb's were approved by the board Tuesday night, with Partney dissenting.

Later in the meeting, a review of bidding showed that shake mix usage each day averages 37 gallons at GCHS South, 25 gallons at Coolidge, 23 gallons at Grigsby, 22 gallons at GCHS North and 19 gallons at Prather, a total of 126 gallons a day.

For each gallon of vanilla shake mix, Southern Products Co. of St. Louis bid $2.30, Reeb's bid $2.30 and Prairie Farms $2.40.

On each gallon of chocolate shake mix, Southern bid $2.30, Reeb's $2.40 and Prairie Farms $2.49.

Southern proposed to deliver each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, and board members noted that schools are closed on Saturdays. Reeb's said the shake mix would be "delivered daily along with milk," and Prairie Farms said it would deliver "twice a week."

Partney said Reeb's currently has been charging $2.60 for vanilla mix and $2.90 for chocolate.

Supt. Davis said the district has confirmed the quality and taste of products from Reeb's and Prairie Farms but has not yet had time to check on Southern Products.

He added that, assuming the board desired an immediate recommendation, he recommends Reeb's on the basis of price and service.

Overhulser contended that less than daily deliveries would create a storage problem at the junior high schools due to the volume of milk shake which is utilized. He said custodians would be forced to do extensive moving of supplies within cooling units.

Supt. Davis noted that Reeb's was offering to service all shake machines at no cost to the district excluding parts, adding that this free service was not previously available from competing vendors.

Commenting that a substantial amount of money was involved in purchasing shake mix, Partney made a motion that Southern Products be designated as the supplier on the basis of its low bid.

Robert Maxwell seconded the motion. Other board members present were Moore, Miosky and President Steve Saltsch; those absent were Donald Stucke and Monroe Worthen.

Overhulser said he was unable to provide any immediate background information on Southern. A discussion brought out that while Reeb's provides daily delivery service, its supplier, O'Fallon Dairy, and many other dairies do not make any products on Wednesday, a cleanup day.

Miosky and Moore successfully urged that time be given to check on the low bidder and to write a detailed analysis and recommendation. The motion and second were withdrawn to permit the topic to be scheduled for action on Nov. 25.

Partney said he had found the Prather cooler "not half full" when he visited the school during morning hours. Overhulser said this would vary according to the day of the week, but that the supply on hand would normally be less with daily deliveries than if there were twice-weekly shipments.

Saltsch cited a bid specification that "there is to be no shake mix delivered before 7 a.m., and deliveries should be made no later than 9 a.m. each school day." He noted that Southern offered "deliveries three times per week, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, before 9 a.m." and perhaps by this wording had failed to meet the advance specification.

All three bidders promised 3.5 percent butterfat.

On solids, Reeb's bid 25.5 percent, Southern 23 percent, and Prairie Farms 25.25 percent for vanilla mix and 25.86 percent for chocolate.

Noting that considerable money was being expended, Maxwell urged that the bids be acted on as soon as possible.

He opposed waiting until the next scheduled meeting Dec. 16, and the Nov. 25 date was chosen.

Miosky proposed that the administrative staff obtain as much information as it can on the issue this week.

When Moore asked whether twice weekly deliveries would be adequate, Supt. Davis called on Overhulser and the cafeteria director replied, "No." Moore suggested that the minimum number of acceptable delivery days be determined.

No one at the meeting was able to verify whether Reeb's delivers on Wednesdays.

Cooler space at the two high schools was described as substantially larger than at the junior high schools.

Venice cuts

The City of Madison charges $500 for fire calls outside the city.

Venice Township Supervisor Christ N. Pashoff told the Granite City Press Record Wednesday morning, "The reason we did not pay anything, in 1979 is that no one from Venice ever sent us a bill."

"It's not money they (Venice officials) need, something else is behind this," Pashoff alleged.

"We told them (city officials) we would pay $1,000 quarterly and have the whole amount paid by September 1981," Pashoff said.

According to both the Venice Township records as of Wednesday and Venice City records only $1,000 was paid and that was in August 1980.

"The township board is going to have a meeting Friday night and see if there are not some funds available," Pashoff said.

Pashoff said that the township had received money from the port authority and some money from tenants in the area for fires.

The Tri-City Regional Port Authority entered into agreement with the Venice Township for fire protection on Jan. 6, 1978.

Pashoff said that Venice Township had entered into an agreement with the City of Venice for fire protection for the port authority and the Benjamin addition, but they made no agreement in reference to Eagle Park Acres.

"We got a check ready now for $1,000 for the quarterly payment," Pashoff said.

"At $1,000 a quarter, or $4,000 a year it would take Venice Township several years to pay back what they owe us for the last 11 months," Pashoff said.

Alderman John Erwin, chairman of the Venice aldermanic fire committee.

"I hate to see the people of the area suffer, but there is a matter of principle here. We give this service in good faith for nearly two years now, and received basically nothing."

"We have city employees that have not received a raise for two years. We can not be expected to give away $18,000," Mayor Tryone Echols said.

Alderman Charles Haynes said, "I said it at the last meeting there is no point to continue this service. Two years without any real payment is too long. I say we cut it off and turn it over to our attorney if we have to go to court and collect."

Casey, 4, needs adoptive parents

(Granite City Office, Ill. Department of Children and Family Services.)

Casey is a 4-year-old black baby who needs special, loving adoptive parents. He is a husky, dimpled child with an affectionate personality all his own, described as a joy and a pleasure.

As a result of neglect and malnutrition, he is retarded and handicapped with limited skills, but Casey can communicate his needs and his likes and dislikes and gives much of himself in a relationship.

He likes to play on the floor, roll and scooting, and has recently learned to wave bye-bye. He also has recently shown signs of being able to support his weight on his legs, giving hope that he may some day walk.

He sits in a special chair provided for him which makes it easy for him to be transported in a car or to take part in outdoor outings. He enjoys shopping and being on the go, and any family who accepts him would not be confined or limited socially. He sleeps well at night and takes regular naps.

He attends a special school for the developmentally disabled and will probably need this kind of program most of his life.

Casey needs someone who will be firm with him and continue to insist he try new experiences. He needs the love and security a family would provide.

If you are interested in Casey or adoption in general, you may call the Illinois Department of Children & Family Services, 462-3578, and ask for Fran Smith.

Continued financial assistance will be provided to adoptive parents for the care of Casey.

Man to make restitution

He was ordered to make restitution to the Granite City Housing Authority and fined a total of $175, the latter to be paid by Dec. 5.

R. W. Chase to Bi-State post

Richard W. Chase has been appointed Director of Resource Recovery for the Bi-State Development Agency, it was announced by Agency Executive Director Charles G. Houghton.

In introducing Chase to Bi-State Commissioners at a meeting of the development Committee, Houghton expressed confidence that "the expertise he gained in the planning and financing of a resource recovery system in Connecticut will be extremely valuable to the St. Louis area in helping us accomplish this extremely difficult project and we are most fortunate to have him join us." Chase previously served as president of the Connecticut Resources Recovery Authority and Assistant Commissioner of the Department of Environmental Protection for the State of Connecticut. During his three years as president of Connecticut Resources Recovery Authority, he was responsible for the development of a $55 million resource recovery system for the Bridgeport, Connecticut region. That system is similar to the one proposed by Bi-State.

His responsibilities at Bi-State will include: Supervising activities in the negotiation of contracts for the supply of waste to conversion plants, the sale of energy produced, and the procurement of system technology to process the trash; and the securing of financing for the projects.

A resident of Cambridge, Mass., Chase holds a BA degree from Yale and an L.L.B. degree from Harvard Law School.

Allege finding man in bushes

Donald Vollmer, 43, of St. Louis, allegedly found hiding behind shrubbery at a home in the 2800 block of Washington Avenue, was arrested this week and charged with prowling.

Police were first called to the area when a resident of the 3000 block of Washington said a man in his late 30's, representing himself as a "Jewish hit man," came to the door and said he needed a room "with a light" to stay in for the night. The man left when refused a room.

A woman residing in the 2800 block of Washington reported a man knocked on her door and asked her to call a taxi, but cautioned her not to give his name to the driver. She notified police.

When arrested, Vollmer said he was waiting for a taxi and was playing a game by "hiding from Jews." It was alleged he asked the officer if he was Jewish and if there were any Jewish people in jail.

Vollmer was released two hours later to a relative on payment of a $35 cash bond.

Public urged to attend bus forum

A large public attendance is being encouraged for a meeting to be held here at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 24, on efforts to retain bus service in the Quad-City area and Madison County.

Location will be the Nimeski Recreation Center, 2165 Amos Ave.

Sponsors said they believe Madison County Board Chairman Nelson Hagmann and County Board Members Daniel Partney and Morris Miles will be among the officials able to attend. Also present will be representatives of the Bi-State Development Agency, including Darryl Thompson, Illinois liaison officer.

Continuation of present bus service by Bi-State hinges on Madison County creating a mass transit district to help subsidize bus costs.

Mrs. Lois Wetton will be chairman of Monday's open discussion of the subject. She comments, "The bus issue is extremely serious and important. Many people depend on riding the bus each morning and evening."

Boys caught in burglary

Two youthful burglars, 13 and 14 years old, were taken into custody at 2:20 a.m. today when an officer saw the pair leave Al's Auto Parts, 2512 Nameeki Road, through a side door.

The parents of the boys were notified and both juveniles remained in custody this morning for investigation of burglary. The arrests were made when an officer on patrol noticed glass was broken in the auto parts store's front door.

He was unable to see anything through the front window and walked around the side of the building and saw the two youths exit from a side door and run south.

The youths complied with an order to halt and lie face down in the parking lot, where they remained until a backup unit arrived at the scene.

A search of the premises revealed no one else. A large concrete rock was found inside the store and a brick-bat was laying on the sidewalk.

Various car accessories and papers were scattered about the floor and a box containing packaged tools and accessories was near the counter.

Adjacent to the front window was a flashlight, a packaged custom mirror, an engine heater and a bottle of windshield cleaner, police said.

A cash drawer, empty except for some pennies, was on the floor behind the counter.

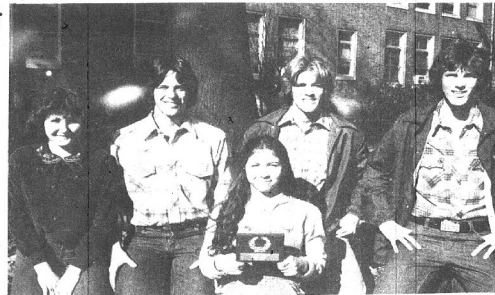

Different types of car parts were found along the aisles of the storage area and a desk in the rear of the building had been ransacked with zippered money bags and papers scattered about the floor.

Officers contacted the owner, James Scribner of O'Fallon, Ill., who informed police at 7 a.m. today that a total of $53 was missing from the store.

CASH, STAMPS GONE
Mrs. Darlene Moore, 2836 Ralph St., reported at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday that an envelope was stolen from her purse, containing a total of $225 cash and $97 worth of food stamps, while she was shopping at Schnuck's Market.

HELD IN JAIL

On Sunday night at 7:45 Champ was arrested on South Drive and Illinois Highway 111, Pontoon Beach, and charged with driving with a suspended driver's license, driving under the influence of alcohol and improper lane usage. He was allegedly unruly at the scene and allegedly attacked a Pontoon Beach officer in th police station.

Out on bond, is arrested again

Donnell Young, 19, of 104 Venice Homes, Venice, is being held today in the Venice city jail pending $12,500 bond. According to police, he is charged with theft under $150 and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Young and a 16-year-old boy allegedly stole two six packs of beer from Venice Liquors, 324 Broadway, at 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Following an earlier arrest, Young had just been released Monday from the Madison County jail, after posting a $25 cash bond on charges of obstructing a peace officer, disobeying a lawful command and resisting a peace officer.

Young was a passenger in an auto police stopped that had an expired 1980 Illinois registration. While police were talking to the driver, Young allegedly became unruly and was arrested.

Young is to appear in court on Friday, Dec. 5 to answer the earlier charges from Monday.

ARREST ON WARRANT
Charles F. Valle, 26, Edwardsville, was brought from the City Hall in Granite City to police headquarters Monday on a warrant citing him with assault. The charge resulted from an alleged incident occurring at 11:30 a.m. Nov. 11. He was released on his own recognizance by authority of Associate Judge Thomas E. Hildebrand.

Mayor fails to get answers

Mayor Paul Schuler returned Tuesday night from a one-day trip to Washington where he learned there is little chance of any immediate decision on the distribution of property declared surplus at the Army Installation here.

Mayor Schuler said he received unsatisfactory response to his inquiry as to whether the property, now reduced to 157 acres from the original 287 acres declared surplus will be distributed soon.

The mayor said he met with GSA representatives as well as agents of the U.S. Army but was told there is no plan for immediate action.

"I don't know what is going on," the mayor said. "They declared 287 acres surplus at the installation, then took back 130 acres. Now they are talking about higher prices."

Granite City will continue in its efforts to obtain at least part of the surplus property, the mayor said. Three warehouses remain on property still on the surplus list, he added.

Entertain circles at dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Williams, 4937 Carl St., entertained the Ella Mae and Evening Missionary circles of Mount Zion General Baptist Church at their home Tuesday night.

A Thanksgiving theme was used to decorate the dinner tables, which had centerpieces of pumpkins and mock turkeys. Mrs. Flo Monroe, president, conducted a silent auction of white elephant items following dinner. Proceeds were given to the missionary love gift fund and foreign missions.

Eighteen members attended the event.

Residential phone rates rising 75¢

New rates for Illinois Bell telephone customers are scheduled to go into effect Nov. 27, with residential single lines going up 75 cents a month for most outstate and suburban customers.

The Illinois Commerce Commission has granted Illinois Bell $139.4 million of the $211 million the company had requested in general rate increases. The commission also increased the company's rate of return from 9.4 percent to 10.9 percent.

"The 37 percent increase in total company revenues granted will help offset part of the effect of inflation," said H. A. Latimer, Illinois Bell vice president, regulatory and financial.

"However, this falls short of the 7 percent rise in revenues we told the commission we need to fully combat inflationary cost increases."

"This decision by the ICC recognizes that Illinois Bell can't continue to provide service for the 1980s at mid-70s prices."

The commission approved increases in local telephone rates for both residence and business customers. The company has not had a general increase in local telephone rates since Jan. 1, 1974.

Examples of these increases range from 10 cents a month for Chicago residential single lines to 75 cents a month for most suburban single line users. Business lines went up $2.95 a month. Business lines increased by $2 or $3.50 monthly, depending on the type of service.

Other monthly increases approved by the commission include: higher rates for standard phones (up 15 cents for dial, 35 cents for Touch-Tone); Trunkline (up 35 cents for dial, 65 cents for Touch-Tone) and Princess phones (up 25 cents for dial and 45 cents for Touch-Tone).

Also, increases in Touch-Tone line charges (up 5 cents for residence lines, 10 cents for business lines); and increased rates for six-button business telephones and for some Centrex services.

The commission authorized elimination of the 40-cent monthly credit toward the company's Directory Assistance Charging plan. The monthly call allowance will remain at eight calls.

Rates will increase for person-to-person operator-assisted long distance calls. The rates for direct-dialed long distance calls and for other operator-assisted calls such as credit card, collect and third number calls will remain the same.

Rates for extra directory listings will increase 10 cents for residence and 15 cents for most business customers.

The rate for private directory service to 30 cents or 95 cents per month. A new 50-cent charge for semi-private directory service (listed with Directory Assistance only) will be applied.

Most of the increases approved involve services and equipment that customers have the option of selecting," Latimer said.

"Even with these increases, the cost of telephone service since 1967 has risen less than one-third as much as most other goods and services."

"Examples of these increases range from 10 cents a month for Chicago residential single lines to 75 cents a month for most suburban single line users."

Business lines went up $2.95 a month. Business lines increased by $2 or $3.50 monthly, depending on the type of service.

Other monthly increases approved by the commission include: higher rates for standard phones (up 15 cents for dial, 35 cents for Touch-Tone); Trunkline (up 35 cents for dial, 65 cents for Touch-Tone) and Princess phones (up 25 cents for dial and 45 cents for Touch-Tone).

Council delays action on change in zoning

The Granite City Council Tuesday night delayed action on a City Plan Commission report by referring it back to the aldermen of Ward Four, Glen Sprankle and Warren Decatur.

The action was preceded by long argument in which the council members heard several members from the audience in favor of and against the rezoning of a tract of land on Circle Drive between 28th and 29th streets to a business zoning for building a truck and tractor repair shop.

The rezoning was sought by Bill and Helen Scheider who won approval of the request in a Nov. 17 meeting of the City Plan Commission.

The planning group recommended the council award the rezoning to Class B business zoning.

When the commission report was read by Alderman Paul Ray Bowler who said several persons wanted to speak on the matter. Mrs. Catherine Clapham, a resident of Circle Drive, said a number of persons are objecting to the rezoning "because we don't want any business firms in that area."

She noted that once there is a business classification in a neighborhood, they continue to mount.

Scheider, represented by Attorney Leon Seragging, explained plans to expand an existing business of truck repair by constructing a building to house work which he now does outside at his home. Upon questioning, Scheider said he had been doing such work outside his home for three to four years.

Some aldermen expressed surprise that he had conducted the business without a permit for so long a time, but said the plan to enclose the work, described by Scheider as his livelihood, obviously would be an improvement.

While there was an apparent inclination to go along with the Plan Commission recommendation, the council decided to refer the matter back to the aldermen of the ward to make a further investigation.

'Safety on Wheels' workshops set

The first of a statewide series of 96 "Safety on Wheels" workshops to improve safety practices of transportation providers serving the elderly will begin Nov. 24-25, the Illinois Department on Aging has announced.

Each two-day workshop will consist of six hours of instruction with one three-hour session scheduled per day. In this region a workshop will be held at the Maryville Senior Center, administration building in Maryville on Jan. 7 and 8.

Workshop topics include equipment specifications, driver standards, vehicle inspection, preventive maintenance, fuel conservation and energy conservation planning, technical assistance, insurance, vehicle registration requirements and coordination of transportation systems.

"Many of Illinois' 1.7 million older persons aged 60 and over, especially those in rural areas, rely heavily upon safe, dependable transportation as their lifeline to other Department on Aging-sponsored services such as nutrition programs, and multipurpose senior centers," said Department Director Peg R. Blaser.

"These workshops will give transportation providers for the elderly the information, technical assistance and guidelines they need to keep these lifelines open and reliable," she said.

Blaser said a primary focus of the workshops will be to boost insurability of carriers transporting the elderly by increasing their awareness of current safety practices, standards and guidelines.

"Basically, the problems of obtaining adequate insurance coverage," Blaser said, "really boiled down to a lack of safety. These workshops will hopefully instill in carriers, service providers, drivers and passengers the safety habits and practices necessary to obtain sufficient insurance at affordable rates."

A major feature of the workshops will be an audio-visual presentation on a 10-minute Daily Walk-Around Safety Inspection which the Department is urging all drivers to carry out on a daily basis before transporting seniors.

"No tools or extensive mechanical knowledge is required for this inspection," said Gene Lipskis, a workshop presenter and former Illinois State Police officer and Department of Transportation vehicle inspection supervisor.

"In fact, the star of our slide show is an 88-year-old Springfield grandmother named Elizabeth Bush. By using her as our model, we hope to show others how simple and easy the daily inspection can be."

Workshop participants will receive and study from a comprehensive manual authored by Norma J. Provance on all aspects of vehicle safety and insurance. A co-presenter of the workshops with Lipskis, Provance has a broad background in education, law, insurance, public relations and transportation safety.

"Our objective," Provance said, "is to use the workshops to help establish a comprehensive safety program that is easily adapted by carriers and providers in both rural and urban areas."

For further information on the workshops or unscheduled meeting locations, Quad-Cityans may contact Betty Schuh, Ill. Department of Aging, 421 E. Capitol Ave., Springfield, Ill. 62706 (217) 785-8621.

Mobile program goes to the youth

More than 200 children in the Madison-Venue area take advantage of a special recreation program each week which is sponsored by the Madison County Housing Authority.

The program is called the Mobile Recreation Van Program and it is a traveling program which serves MCHA housing projects in Collinsville and Alton in addition to the Lee Wright Homes in Venice and the Garesche and Grenzer Homes in Madison.

Raymond Little, director of the program, and his assistant Cynthia Stokely work a five-day week visiting each of the housing projects on the same designated day each week. Their goal is to provide worthwhile and fun activities for those youths who may not be able to take advantage of or afford programs and activities in the areas in which they live.

The program is totally funded by the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) for an 18-month period which will end in June of 1981. Charles Haynes, social services coordinator for the housing authority, proposed the program.

The two travel to the various housing projects each day and begin the three-hour recreation program at 5 p.m. at each location. For good-weather days there are a variety of outdoor activities which include basketball, badminton, soccer, softball, horseshoes, kickball, wiffle ball, rope jumping and flag football.

There is also a wide variety of activities for the indoors. Films are sometimes shown and a puppet theater is a main attraction for the children. The two workers try to develop short hand-puppet shows which the children can participate in and perform. Real-life situations are sometimes used and the children are also allowed to use their own imaginations to think of their own skits.

Games are also available to the children. These include ping-pong, checkers, cards, ring toss, bingo, twister and other board type games.

A van supplied by the housing authority is used to transport the equipment from place to place.

Little and Stokely agree that the children's response to the program is very good which is evident by the number of those registered in the program just from Madison and Venice, but they also agree that parent involvement is what is really needed at this time.

The two hope to use the puppets and skits in shows for the parents as a way to make them more aware of the program and the opportunities it gives their children.

Of course, there is always a search for new ideas and activities to share with the children and for others who wish to contribute to the program.

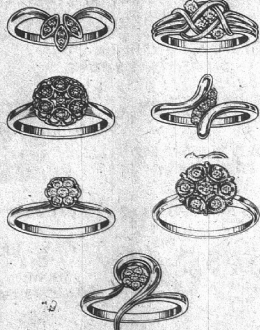

ON THE MOVE. Cynthia Stokely and Raymond Little display some of the outdoor sports equipment available to youngsters registered in the mobile recreation program in the top photo. The two stand in front of the van used for the program with part of the Garesche-Grenzer housing project in the background.

Mrs. Betty Miles, a local legal investigator and practitioner of Extra Sensory Preceptive (ESP), was the guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Tri-Cities Chapter, National Secretaries Association held at Charlie's Restaurant.

"Everyone has ESP to some degree or another, but not everyone uses it," Mrs. Miles explained. She added that members of her family have ESP and they saw nothing unusual about it because they assumed that everyone was able to do the things they did.

"Incidents where ESP comes to a person's advantage were cited, among them the ability to always find a good parking place, to always find a destination when going to a strange city, sometimes arriving at the exact address without asking directions," the evening speaker said.

The audience of 33 members and guests were entertained with spot readings as the program concluded, and were astonished at the things they found Mrs. Miles could tell them about themselves, a club spokesman noted.

The next meeting of the chapter will be a Christmas party at Rusty's Restaurant in Edwardsville on Dec. 4. Visitors and guests are welcome and can make reservations by contacting any chapter member. Twila Edmonds, president announced.

Arrest man near damaged vehicle

David L. Rose, 20, of 905 Kirkpatrick Homes, was arrested at 12:30 a.m. Tuesday outside Jacob Smeyer's Tavern, 2401 Edwards, and charged with criminal damage to property.

The charge stemmed from an incident involving the breaking of taillights on a 1979 Chevrolet owned by Thomas Manogian, 6 Country Court Lane.

Jim Hayes, owner of the tavern, told police he heard something break outside and allegedly saw Rose and another man walking east on Edwards Street.

Police alleged Rose had blood on his hand, which he could not account for, and that blood also was visible on car, near the broken lights.

Rose was released at 3 a.m. Tuesday on payment of a $35 cash bond. The second man was released without being charged.

1980 State Soccer Tournament

It's been a long, hard campaign

By PETE HAYES
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record
GRANITE CITY — It never gets any easier. It's hard to stay on top.

But Granite City South's soccer team has done it. It's done it four times now. The latest time came last Saturday night on the frozen tundra in Palatine when the Warriors beat Hinsdale South 5-1 to win the 1980 state championship — their fifth straight.

But the victory over Hinsdale was just the icing on the cake. The past season, perhaps more than any of the other championship campaigns, might have been the best ever for Granite City South. The team itself might not have been the best. It might have been. But never before has a South soccer team done what the 1980 version did. Just think:

— South won its first-ever Gateway East championship this season. Even though the Warriors were state champions last season, Granite City North won the Gateway crown that year.

— The Warriors were the first Illinois team to be invited to the prestigious Catholic Youth Council Tournament in St. Louis. The oldest and perhaps most prestigious of all high school soccer tournaments, the C.Y.C. features the cream of the crop of all the better St. Louis Catholic and public high school teams. South got into the tournament by the skin of its teeth. The C.Y.C. officials extended the invitation to Warrior coach Gene Baker only two weeks before the meet was to begin...because another team had dropped out and they needed a quick replacement.

— But South surprised the arrogant C.Y.C. officials who thought the Warriors would be an easy mark. Instead of losing their first round game and getting out of the way, the Warriors won the tournament championship. Along the way they defeated University City 5-1, Vianney 1-0, DuBourg 2-1 on penalty kicks and St. Mary's 2-0. It could be the most notable achievement of the season.

— South defeated both the Missouri and Indiana state champions. The Warriors' victory over Vianney in the C.Y.C. Tournament was notable at the time. But when the Golden Griffins won the Missouri state championship last Saturday night, it became even more noteworthy. South also handed Reitz Memorial High of Evansville, Ind. its only defeat of the season. Last week, Reitz won its second straight Indiana prep title.

It hasn't been easy. But no one said it would be. One of the roughest games South was ever involved in came on Oct. 20 in Collinsville when the Kahoks downed South 3-2.

In the first round of the Sectional Tournament at South, the Warriors gained revenge on the Kahoks 2-0, silencing many purple-and-white clad soccer experts.

It was a long, hard campaign.

The wizard of Granite

GRANITE CITY — Gene Baker leaned back in the chair in the coaches' office. His eyes were red, his thinning hair disheveled. He was worn out. It had been nearly three days since his Granite City South soccer team had won its fifth straight state championship. But there was still much to be done.

"I'm exhausted," said Baker. "For most of the fans, it's over when the State Tournament is over. But when I get back, I've got phone calls and follow-ups from papers, radio and television. We've also got the All-State Banquet in Chicago Wednesday (yesterday)."

But Baker wasn't complaining. He was explaining. Gene Baker doesn't complain...unless it's to an official during a game or the IHSA about a ruling. But then, he's doing it for his boys. His team.

South, maybe more than other prep soccer teams, is like a family. The Warriors and their coaches and managers practically live together from August until the middle of November. That closeness could be one of the reasons that South's seasons last until the middle of November — the last game of the prep season.

"We work hard," said Baker. "But we think it's worth it. We drill the boys over and over again in meetings about the opposition. We practice simple (and complicated) plays over and over. Sometimes I imagine they get tired of Mel (Bunting, South assistant) and me, but when it ends this way, it's worth it."

Baker does things for "his boys" that many high school coaches don't. After the season ends, their relationship doesn't. "We get together after the season and evaluate our program," said Baker. "We also evaluate the kids. We set objectives. We try to see where we can improve."

"One thing we do is pick an all-opponents team. I can't stand to see high school programs with teams that aren't informed. The kids should know who the best players are on other teams. They should read the papers and keep informed."

Baker gets his players into college, too. He started making phone calls to colleges around the country to find the right ones for his players — both in terms of soccer skills and academic skills.

Next season will be markedly different from the last four for Baker. He won't have David Fernandez to kick the ball around anymore. But Baker doesn't worry about it. After all, South won the state title when Fernandez was in junior high and won it in 1978 with him sitting on the bench most of the second part of the season with a broken arm. "We won't be hurting without David," said Baker. "Oh, sure, no one can take his place. We won't look at it that way. But we've got some good kids with a lot of talent coming back. Our junior varsity was 12-2-2. What we'll do is just shift some responsibilities. That's the beauty of our program — the ability to be flexible."

Joy, Joy, Joy

Granite City South's Don Cook (above) celebrates his goal in the state championship game against Hinsdale South. It turned out to be the winning goal in South's 5-1 victory. At top, South fans get ready for the overtime penalty kicks in Saturday's semifinal thriller with Chicago Bowen.

Bowen's O'Leary reflects

CHICAGO — The voice was still a little weak, but filled with pride. Chicago Bowen soccer coach John O'Leary was speaking two days after his team had lost to eventual state champion Granite City South in the State Tournament semifinals. It was one of the most exciting games ever played in IHSA history.

"I guess I feel a little better today," he said with a thick Chicago accent. "We went a long way this year with just a bout no money at all."

Chicago Bowen is a typical Public League school. Minority students, inner-city location and no money. "We don't even get new soccer balls from the school," said O'Leary. "But out in the suburbs, they have everything. Even indoor facilities. Our field is a mile from the school."

The soft-spoken coach continued, "I congratulate them on winning the championship," he said. "They've got a great tradition there. It's like a well-oiled machine."

That was the season that was

GRANITE CITY — Ah yes. Soccer season. That wonderful, colorful time of year when boys and girls kick funny looking black and white ball across fields and lawns and streets and alleys. When leaves turn to their fall colors and the winter chill makes its first appearance.

But then, it's always soccer season in Granite City, the Mecca of the sport in Illinois. And after the past high school season, maybe the midwest. The results show it.

Granite City South did everything. It won its fifth straight state championship last week at Palatine Fremd High School. It won St. Louis's almighty C.Y.C. Tournament this season, beating some of the toughest Missouri teams in the process. But contrary to what some people might think, South ISN'T making a joke of soccer in Illinois. Quite the opposite. Illinois soccer is coming into its own. It can hold its own against prep soccer teams from anywhere—including St. Louis.

Take Granite City for example: Granite City South, was 5-1 against St. Louis schools this season. That included wins over eventual Missouri state champion Vianney and powers DuBourg and St. Mary's. Their lone loss was in a brutal game at Rosary — a game in which South outshot its opponent.

Granite City South had a season to top all seasons. It did everything. Here's a game-by-game rundown:

The season began Sept. 2 for South, but the Warriors could have probably gotten a better game from their jayvees. They beat Lebanon 14-0. Robbie Mann, a transfer from Collinsville, scored South's first goal of the season. The Warriors outshot the Greyhounds 73-0....The next test for South turned out to be not much of one. Alton brought a 4-0 record to the Gauntlet and went home with a 7-1 loss. All-Stater David Fernandez had three goals, the first one 53 seconds into the game. Other goals were scored by Billy Hency, Eric Waltenberger (2) and Phil Popmarkoff.

Edwardsville was up next and the Tigers pulled off a moral victory and nearly an upset when they tied South 1-1 in one of two low points in the season. Tiger goalie Chris Mackie was brilliant against the Warriors, making 17 saves. David Paz tied the game in the fourth quarter for South. Fernandez was injured in the game but not seriously....Granite City North played host to South Sept. 9 in the first of three meetings between the two teams. South came out with the first of three wins in this one, 2-0. Baz and Don Cook scored for the Warriors and goalie Joe LeMaster notched the shutout....South traveled to the state capital Sept. 15 and beat Springfield Southeast 3-0. Mann scored twice and Paz added the other goal. Shutout number three for LeMaster.

South's Eric Waltenberger is mobbed by teammates after his goal against Wheaton Christian.

The first big game was Sept. 23 against Edwardsville. It was homecoming week at South and the Warriors responded with a 1-0 win. Fernandez scored the lone goal, playing in his first game since being injured. South had the edge in shots 40-3....Belleville Althoff was next and South came away with an easy Gateway East victory....Quincy came calling on South Sept. 27 and came away without a victory. South, on two goals by Fernandez and one by Rushing won 3-0.

On Sept. 28, the Warriors played in Evansville, Ind. against Evansville Reitz Memorial, the defending Indiana state champion, and had little trouble in handing the Tigers a 3-1 loss. South jumped out to a 3-0 lead before Memorial knew what had hit it. Fernandez, Cook and Moore scored South's goals....The fourth game in four days was in Cahokia, where South won 4-2, after trailing 1-0 on a penalty kick. Goals were scored by Fernandez, Mann (2) and Cook.

Next up, game number two against Granite North. South had a little more trouble this time with the Steelkerts than they did the first time. North jumped out to a 1-0 lead on a goal by Paul Barrington. But Fernandez and Mann scored for South in its 2-0 win.

Then came the C.Y.C. Tournament. South's first game wasn't much. It whipped University City 5-1....But the second contest was a thriller. The Warriors made a goal by Cook stand up when it handed eventual Missouri state champ Vianney a 1-0 loss on a dusty, bumpy field in Forest Park....but the next C.Y.C. game was even more thrilling. South outlasted DuBourg, the 1978 Missouri state champ, 2-1 in overtime on sudden death penalty kicks. Fernandez scored the regulation goal and Billy Hency scored the penalty kick to win it. South goalie LeMaster was brilliant on the penalty kicks, stopping one. The other sailed wide of the goal....Then came the C.Y.C. championship game Oct. 4 at Vianney against St. Mary's. South scored on two late goals from Dix and Moore and won 2-0. It marked the first time an Illinois team had won the meet.

Another Missouri school was next. Hazelwood East lost to South 4-1 Oct. 13....The Warriors clinched the Gateway East Conference championship Oct. 16 when it beat Cahokia 2-0 at hoern. Goals were scored by Moore and Fernandez. Dix had one called back....South finished unbeaten in the GEC with a 2-1 win over Althoff Oct. 18 in Belleville. South trailed 1-0 early.

The lowest point of the campaign came in the last regular season game. South lost at Collinsville' 3-2. It was the first Collinsville victory over a South squad ever. The Warriors scored first on a penalty kick by Fernandez. But then Bobby Tajada scored three times to give the Kahoks a 3-1 lead in the emotional, physical game. Paz scored on a penalty kick with 40 seconds left.

The sub-sectionals began with an undefeated team coming to visit South. But Alton Marquette, in its first year of varsity competition, went home with a 3-0 loss....In the sub-sectional championship, South ended North's season 1-0 in a thriller. Fernandez scored for South.

The sectional opener featured a Collinsville-South rematch. The results were different from the first game. South won 2-0 and remained unscathed upon in the playoffs. Fernandez and Dix scored....Quincy fell to South 2-0 in the sectional championship game as Segobiano scored. The Warriors were on their way to Palatine.

Storybook characters delight youngsters

Delighted looks and keen attention were given familiar characters from children's storybooks, who visited classrooms at Marshall School to help promote the school's first RIF Day (Reading is Fundamental), which is scheduled Friday.

The older students were clad in a variety of costumes that exhibited a great deal of originality and imagination and represented different books available through the program.

Their efforts were designed to show younger pupils that books and their contents are "interesting."

Three free book distribution days are planned this year under PTA sponsorship to encourage pride of ownership and motivate reading.

At upper left are Daniel Hutchings and

Storybook Land presents Mickey and Minnie Mouse, lower left, portrayed by Jeannie Click and Linda Akeman, and Beauty and the Beast, lower right, has Vickie and Danny Farley representing the "perfect duo."

Other character parts were played by Peggy Spiedel, Travis Moorman, Rochelle Wallace, Vicki Gann, Shelli White, Christine Wingrove and Ilene Griffin.

Governor plans new laws on dumping hazardous waste

Governor James R. Thompson has announced that a special investigative unit is being formed in the Department of Law Enforcement to lead an attack on the criminal dumping of hazardous wastes in Illinois. The new Law Enforcement unit will include 25 agents and related equipment at a cost of about $1.4 million a year. The investigators will work closely with personnel from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and with Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Faubus and his staff to develop prosecutions of criminal dumping cases under the new law.

In addition, Thompson said, he will draft legislation for the next General Assembly session to allow Environmental Protection Agency personnel to set fines up to $10,000 on the site where hazardous waste dumping violations occur.

Legislation approved by the governor (House Bills 3365 and 3366) in September made illegal dumping of hazardous substances a felony, carrying a sentence of one to three years in prison. The sentence may be doubled for a second conviction.

"Deadly waste products from our industrial processes are being disposed of in Illinois. Most of the dumping is properly supervised and approved. However, Illinois citizens must be protected from potentially disastrous effects of criminal dumping.

"The grim reports of illegal dumping grow day by day. The new investigative unit, which will begin functioning by mid-1981, will be assigned the task of using the toughest criminal dumping law in this nation to halt the grim and costly illegal dumping of toxic and deadly wastes in Illinois," the governor said. Thompson also said he will propose that the General Assembly substantially increase the fees for disposing of hazardous chemicals, fees that are used to clean up dump sites which pose a threat to the public health or welfare.

HOLIDAY FAIR. Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will present its annual Christmas Arts and Crafts Fair Dec. 2-4. The public is being invited to attend. The fair will include craftspeople demonstrating and exhibiting woodwork, ceramics, stained glass, leather goods, jewelry, toys, paintings, photography, weaving, Christmas ornaments and gingerbread houses.

Yule crafts fair

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will present its annual Christmas Arts and Crafts Fair Dec. 2-4, according to Ed Carly, coordinator of the University Craft Shop. Free and open to the public, the fair will be located in Goshen Lounge of the University Center. Hours of the fair are: Tuesday, Dec. 2, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.; Wednesday, Dec. 3, from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m.; and Thursday, Dec. 4, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Featuring more than 40 craftspeople from throughout the Midwest, the fair will include a variety of traditional and contemporary demonstrations and exhibits. "There will be something to appeal to all age groups and for all income," Carly said, adding that the handcrafted goods will come in a wide range of prices, and will be gifts that are "true expressions of creativity." Visitors will have an opportunity to watch craftspeople at work, as well as the opportunity to purchase unusual gifts, Carly said. There will be woodwork, ceramics, stained glass, leather goods, jewelry, toys, paintings, photography, weaving, ornaments and gingerbread houses. Classes that develop skills in a variety of crafts will be offered during the winter quarter by the Craft Shop, 692-2178.

PROTECTIVE CUSTODY. Checking in the vicinity of the 2500 block of W. 23rd Street because several dogs were barking at 4:30 a.m. Monday, a police officer found a wounded duck which he took into "protective custody," according to a report.

Recreational plates on sale

Renewals of recreational vehicle and recreational trailer license plates with a Dec. 31 expiration date are being sold over the counter beginning last Monday at public service outlets in Springfield and Chicago. Secretary of State Alan J. Dixon announced today. Dixon also said that truck owners may purchase renewals of their private base plates and decals and apportionment plates issued under the International Registration Plan beginning Nov. 17 in Room 300 of the Centennial Building in Springfield.

All renewal plates purchased on the early Nov. 17 over-the-counter sales date may be displaced on vehicles at that time. Recreational vehicle and recreational trailer plate renewals for 1981 may be purchased in Springfield offices in the Centennial Building and Drksen Parkway facility, which also features two drive-in windows.

Tree trimming ceremony Dec. 1

The University Center at SIUE will again be the site of a campus Christmas tree, Lyle Ward, assistant director of the center, has announced.

A 20-foot tree has been an annual tradition at the university since the University Center building opened in 1967. The tree will be located in Goshen Lounge.

The tree trimming event is scheduled Monday, Dec. 1, beginning at 11 a.m. The university community and the public are being invited to participate in the decoration ceremony. Randy Rice, a folk guitarist from Chicago, will entertain the workers as they decorate the tree. He has been featured on the "Midnight Special" television show.

Kathleen Long marries John Alan Ritchie

Miss Kathleen S. Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Long, 41 Villa Drive, and John Alan Ritchie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ritchie, 3348 Colgate Drive, were united in marriage on Oct. 18 at The First Assembly of God Church.

The Rev. Dale Edwards officiated at the 6:30 p.m. ceremony.

For her wedding the bride chose a full length two-piece gown designed with a fitted bodice featuring spaghetti straps and worn with a short bolero jacket of Chantilly lace and chiffon.

Her A-line skirt and chapel train was encircled with a tulle gathered flounce and lace motifs.

She wore a mantilla veil bordered with matching lace and she held a Bible topped with white begonia, lily-of-the-valley and tied with blue and white streamers.

Mrs. Brenda Scarborough, a sister of the bride, served as matron of honor with bridesmaids, Miss Dina Long, another sister of the bride, Michele Scott, Jackie Sigite and Diana Ritchie, a sister of the groom.

They were dressed in identical blue lace knit gowns fashioned with boussan style bodices with cap sleeves and pleated skirts.

Each attendant held three long stem white begonias with sprigs of baby's breath and tied with satin streamers.

The groom chose his brother, Harold Ritchie Sr., as his best man.

Robin Hogan, Dave Haas, Loague Yount, Charlie Dan Long, a brother of the bride, and Louie Clonko, a cousin of the groom, completed the corps of groomsmen and ushers.

Guests were received by the newlywed couple at a reception held at Engelbert Hall in Madison. The rehearsal dinner was hosted at the China Gardens in St. Louis.

A graduate of South High School, the bride also attended from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville where she majored in special education. She is employed at K-Mart Store.

The groom was graduated from Hazelwood Central High School and is an employee of Granite City Steel.

They are now residing in Granite City.

Deborah Holt becomes Mrs. Ronald Wilkerson

The wedding of Miss Deborah M. Holt, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Holt, 1025 Alton Ave., Madison, and Ronald Wilkerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilkerson, Wood River, was solemnized on Sept. 20, at the United Methodist Church of Madison.

Pastor John Walter officiated at the double ring ceremony at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

White satin bows marked the pews and arrangements of pink and white sweetheart roses adorned the altar.

Organist Dorothy Lionberger accompanied Alicia Poplichak as she sang, "Sunrise, Sunset." The Lord's Prayer and "Sometimes."

For her wedding, the former Miss Holt selected a floor length princess gown of white nylon over tulle enhanced with French Alencon lace on the fitted bodice and full bishop sleeves.

Her full skirt was ruffled from the waist to the cathedral train accented with matching lace.

A mantilla headpiece of Alencon lace held in place her cathedral veil of bridal illusion trimmed with lace and she held a bouquet of silk pink carnations interspersed with pink sweetheart roses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Karen Wilkerson, a sister-in-law of the groom, and the bridesmaids included Misses Donna and Dorothy Holt, sisters of the bride, Miss Diane Hollis and Mrs. Patty Anderson.

They selected identical burgundy polyester gowns designed with spaghetti straps and pleated skirts complemented with matching chiffon capes.

Each attendant wore sprigs of baby's breath in her hair and carried a basket of silk pink carnations and roses intermingled with daisies and burgundy dried flowers.

Leah Wilkerson, a niece of the groom, and Paul Wood Jr. served as flower girl and ringbearer. She wore a pink frock trimmed in tulle and carried a miniature bridal basket of blossoms.

Drussilla Andrews enrolls member

The Drussilla Andrews Chapter of the DAR held its November meeting at Burr's Cafeteria with opening ceremonies led by the regent, Mrs. Emma Schoen, assisted by the chaplain, Mrs. Janet Wilson, and Mrs. Shirley Schwendemann.

The program for the afternoon was presented by Mrs. Barbara Williams who used a recording with sounds and speakers from World War I and also most of the music from that time, with which everyone was familiar. After the final song, "Over There," explains were read from a newspaper clipping written by a soldier still in France on Thanksgiving night, about two weeks after the war ended.

A guest present was Mrs. Mary Rekas, who belongs to the South High School DAR chapter. Other members present were Mrs. Margaret Belt, Mrs. Georgia Engelage, and Miss Eva Renfro.

The nominating committee reported progress on a slate of officers. For the remainder of this year, Miss Mae McCormick has agreed to serve as the chaplain.

Mrs. Ruth McCarty presented the safety slogan for the month.

Veizer offers safety tips for Thanksgiving

A well-stocked Thanksgiving table is usually not associated with "conservation"—especially by those with a tendency to over-eat. Chief of Police Ronald J. Veizer, however, has issued suggestions on how motorists can save energy, themselves and their peace of mind during Thanksgiving trips.

Rule one, according to the chief, is to observe the 55 mph speed limit. "You'll not only conserve fuel, you'll also have a more pleasant trip and arrive at your destination more rested and relaxed," he said.

Since Thanksgiving travel in many areas coincides with the season's first snow fall, a lot of conservative management of your car's needs is indicated.

A checkup by a competent mechanic before the trip is a must. Brakes, lights, tires, defroster, windshield wipers and washer, battery and exhaust—along with a tuneup—should be included.

Stock your trunk with safety gear—tire chains, booster cables, a shovel, tow chain and strap, traction mats, sand or rock salt, emergency lighting equipment and a roll of paper towels for cleaning lights and glass.

Driver and passenger conversation is in order as well, according to Chief Veizer.

Plan your routes in advance. Keep your timetable flexible in case of adverse weather.

Be rested and alert when you start.

Plan rest stops along the way.

Chief Veizer's suggestions have been based on recommendations from the International Association of Chiefs of Police. Both join together to urge:

"The use of safety restraints conserves lives and avoids injuries. Always put them on—no matter how short or long the trip!"

28 attend CPR class

The Wilson School PTA sponsored a Cardiac Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) training course on Friday at the school gym with 28 persons participating. This was the first of two CPR training sessions that the PTA will sponsor the school year.

Art Asadorian and Mike Richardson, paramedics with the Granite City Fire Department, and Ed Morton of the Illinois Heart Association served as instructors.

The participants were introduced to CPR with the showing of a film followed by a talk by Asadorian.

Questions from the audience were answered by Asadorian and Richardson. The participants were divided into three groups, with each group receiving instructions on the technique for ad-

A third group was taught how to utilize the procedure for an infant.

The three men also instructed those present in the methods of saving a person who is choking from an obstacle lodged in their windpipe.

Morton announced that he was pleased to see people take advantage of this and other opportunities to learn CPR. He stated that the larger the number of people who know how to administer CPR, the greater the chance of a cardiopulmonary arrest victim has for survival.

Mrs. Shirley Star, who was in charge of this event, noted that she was pleased to see some Junior High and High School students taking the course.

Concern over the cracking of some walls in the new Madison Middle School was a major topic at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Madison Board of Education.

Maintenance Supervisor Eldon Rhoads told the board he had talked to several of the sub-contractors and the contractor about the problem.

According to Rhoads he has been told the cracking is caused by the early settling and shifting of the building.

He also said the contractor alleges that the school is one of the strongest buildings ever built.

Rhoads said simply, "Some are and some are not."

"The people paid for a first class building and if there is trouble with it we ought to investigate and bring suit against the contractor or contractors deemed responsible."

Board Member Don Garrett said the board approved putting a night light up near the storage garage in the high school. Vandals did an estimated $80 damage inside the garage during the evening hours on Sunday.

A letter, to be distributed to the staff at the Middle School, was approved by the board. The board is asking teachers for positive ideas on new programs for the students.

Board Secretary Bosworth will pick up the letters on Monday, Dec 1 and make copies for each board member to study.

The board approved, on the recommendation of Henry R. Gabriel, the school architect, a proposal for preparation of a site grading plan for the Middle School athletic field.

Flagg, Scheibal, Sherbut and Associates were awarded the contract for $2,500. According to Gabriel the proposal was $1,000 less than one submitted by Jueau Associates.

A special board meeting was called for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 25 for student hearings and personnel.

IEPA, Monsanto complete tests of Dead Creek

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency at Springfield released the results last week of cooperative sampling and analysis of soil in the bed of Dead Creek, Cahokia-Sauget.

The tests were carried out by IEPA and the Monsanto Chemical Company.

The results are based on three soil samples taken by each on Oct. 2, in the creek bed between Queensy Road and Judith Lane plus a water sample from an adjacent private well.

The soil samples were taken at the northern, central and southern portions of the creek bed.

James Kelly, chemist for IEPA's Emergency Response Unit, said, "The soil samples were analyzed for polychlorinated biphenols (PCBs) and total phosphorous, while the water sample was tested for PCB's."

"There is excellent analytical agreement in the results, considering the variations in distribution found in contaminated soil and the recognized differences in analytical procedures."

No PCB's were detected in the well water samples by either the IEPA or Monsanto. The agency's soil analyses showed levels of PCB's at 10,000 parts per million (ppm) at the north end of Dead Creek, 350 ppm in the central area and 73 ppm at the south end.

Analyses by Monsanto showed PCB's levels of 13,000 ppm at the north end, 240 ppm in the central section and 45 ppm at the north end.

The IEPA laboratory found total phosphorous levels of 2,000 ppm, 8,900 ppm and 4,700 ppm, respectively, while Monsanto's results for the same areas showed 2,550 ppm, 13,000 ppm and 9,400 ppm. No elemental phosphorous was found in any of the samples by Monsanto.

Taxes are due Monday

Monday is the final day for Madison County taxpayers to pay the final installment on their 1979 tax bills.

Penalties will begin Tuesday, according to Madison County Treasurer Mick Henkhaus. Anything postmarked prior to Tuesday will not be penalized, he said.

The penalty is one percent per month on the amount owed after the deadline, he added.

At 9:15 a.m. Tuesday, the woman told police that Tucker, a former acquaintance, climbed up to a stairless second story rear porch and broke a window to enter her apartment at 12:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The victim alleged Tucker beat her with his fists about the face and body, made threats and restrained her when she repeatedly tried to leave the apartment.

She had no phone and was unable to summon help, she said. An officer noted the woman had marks and abrasions visible on her throat.

Just prior to calling police at 9:15 a.m., the victim said Tucker allowed her to leave to take her child to school, but she went to a friend's house instead and called police.

Tucker had left the apartment when officers arrived, but he returned at 11:40 a.m. and was arrested. He was released at 3:10 p.m. Tuesday on payment of a $70 cash bond.

Tucker was charged with criminal damage to property and battery.

Madrigal banquet, concert

Area residents are being invited to begin the Christmas season with a traditional madrigal dinner concert Dec. 5 and 6 at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. The event, which will begin at 7 p.m. in the University Center's Meridian Ballroom, is sponsored by the University Center. The O'Fallon township High School Music Department will present the program. Admission charge for both the dinner and performance is $9.

"Madrigal dinners were initiated in the 16th Century and combine the pagentry of madrigal singing with a traditional Christmas dinner," says Lyle Ward, assistant director of the University Center. "Across the country, madrigals have become a traditional way to begin the Christmas season."

Madrigals are songs performed by small groups of singers. Each group combines several independent voice parts, creating a music that is melodically and rhythmically unique.

"Meridian Ballroom will be transformed into a 16th Century castle hall complete with candlelight and banners," said Ward.

During the program, singers, musicians, court jesters and an array of lords and ladies will appear, dressed in the costumes of the 16th Century England. As the audience enjoys Renaissance foods the performers will present a program of songs especially adapted to the various stages of the meal. The program will end with a carol sung by the performers and audience together.

The menu will include a wassail bowl, fresh cranberry salad, roast beef au jus, Yorkshire pudding, Canterbury glazed carrots, Lancashire bread and flaming Christmas pudding. Since seating is limited to 300 people per performance, advance reservations are required. Only mail reservations will be accepted. Reservations are to be mailed to:

Madrigal Dinner, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, Box 67, Edwardsville 62026.

They should be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reservation confirmation. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Clarice Moulton, Union Station ticket supervisor, at 692-2320.

Manufacturers to hear Kilpatrick

Newspaper columnist and broadcast journalist James J. Kilpatrick will deliver the keynote speech at the 87th annual dinner meeting of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association at 6:30 tonight in the Chicago Marriott Hotel's grand ballroom.

Founded in 1893 as an independent business league, the IMA is the oldest and largest state industrial organization in the U.S. The 5,600-member association seeks to improve business conditions for Illinois manufacturers.

Kilpatrick, who provided commentary on CBS News' election night coverage, will offer his post-election insights and analysis in a talk entitled "The State of the Union."

Family life—infancy to old age

(This is the ninth in a series of 15 articles exploring "American Families in Transition." Copyright (c) 1980 by the Regents of the University of California.)

By NANCY DATAN
In the beginning: pregnancy, birth, infancy.

Studies of mother-infant relationships by psychiatrist Elsie Broussard show that the "normal" mother considers her baby to be superior to most, if not all, other babies.

And at the end: death. Sociologist Helena Lopata, asking widows whether they agree with the statement, "My husband had no irritating habits," notes that she calls "the sanctification of the husband."

Thus do the social scientists who study the family pay tribute to the special intensity of family relationships.

We are born into a network of expectations and obligations—it is hoped that we will "live up to the family name," that we will remember that "blood is thicker than water," and, along with hopes, ties and duties, we are reminded that "there's no place like home."

As we ponder the puzzles and paradoxes of growth and development within the human family, offering its limitless love along with its limitless expectations, our parents respond, explain, defend the indefensible, threaten the ultimate threat: "Wait until you grow up and have children of your own."

And we do grow up and some of us have children and then we do understand.

By middle age, those of us with children appreciate the truth of the statement, "Little children—little problems; big children—big problems."

ANATOMY IS DESTINY. When Freud observed that anatomy is destiny, most of his critics attacked his rather tentative statements on the differences between women and men. Yet, Freud's chief concerns were in the area of development within the family. In this arena, anatomy is destiny.

We are born small, helpless, vulnerable; we are indeed if our mothers and fathers believe us to be special, better than other babies.

The rising rate of reported child abuse and the unknown rate of abuse not yet reported, testify to the powerlessness of the small child—and to the grim fate of those unfortunate children whose parents do not believe them to be special.

We begin small and helpless, and we spend a long time growing up. I often ask my students if they know why this might make developmental sense.

Most suppose that it takes more than a decade for large animals like ourselves to attain adult stature, and are surprised when I point out that horses and elephants grow up in a few years.

It is not until we consider the behavior of young children that the adaptive value of the long childhood of humanity becomes obvious, as some evolutionary theorists have suggested.

Think of a two-year-old child, cross, who wants the cookies and does not want to take no for an answer; and imagine this child on the maturational growth curve of a horse or an elephant, approaching adult size and quite able to take the cookies by force.

Yes, it is easy to see how important it is for the human species, which spends a long time learning to be mature, to stay small and manageable until we learn to manage ourselves.

This is the "power politics" of the life cycle. PROBLEMS AND PARADOXES.

Little children—little problems; big children—big problems. The problems are the paradoxes, which begin with the onset of puberty. My son was tiptoeing toward puberty when I asked him, "Do you kiss girls?" and his middle sister answered for him and defined puberty a well when she replied: "Not any more and not yet."

The paradoxical nature of adolescence, the adult body restrained within the context of the not-yet-socially-adult boundaries, was captured in an offhand remark by my eldest daughter when she turned thirteen:

"Adolescence is when they make you pay the price of an adult ticket, but they won't let you, into the X-rated movies."

Anthropologists comparing the certainty of puberty rites in preliterate societies with the ambiguous transitions in our own culture, have argued the same point more broadly.

The larger paradox in this overview of individual development is the process of development within the family.

Family development begins with a marriage between two persons who love one another, whose privacy as lovers is soon interrupted by the appearance of a small, noisy, helpless being.

Just as the parents master the unfamiliar cues this little person employs as communication—grunts, gestures, cries—these are replaced by words, of which "Not" is among the most quickly learned.

And by the time this rude being has acquired a bit of civilized polish and is becoming a pleasant companion, most of his or her day is spent among friends and in school.

Meanwhile, this small creature, whom we have learned to tend, is learning to manage alone.

How many parents—here they who do not?—remember their own adolescence, and the private promise made as their parents enforced their arbitrary, incomprehensible, unjust rules?

I will NEVER forget what it is like to be fifteen. I will never be unfair to my children when they are this age.

Well, I made this promise to myself, and I have never forgotten what it is like to be fifteen. I'm afraid I haven't done quite as well with the second portion of my vow, however.

For I remember equally well holding the babies in my arms who, though they are now larger than me and superior to me at calculus and cooking, are STILL MY BABIES.

I hope my mother is listening, because my kids sure don't understand this doubletalk, but I think my mother's right.

In my own writings on the family, I have described a series of parental triumphs, highlighted in this overview of individual development, which might be summed up with a precept any parent will recognize:

Just as soon as we become more or less adapted to any developmental stage, the child moves on and our adaptation is rendered obsolete.

Yet, I also believe that the sequence of development and response within the family ensures ongoing growth as no other social institution can do.

ROOM FOR GROWTH. The room for growth within the family makes it unique. And since power, a two-edged sword, the room for growth is matched by the room for delay, arrest, psychosis.

We all know someone whose transition to young adulthood, or marriage, or career choice was marked by "difficulties in breaking away from the family."

Have we ever known anyone who had difficulties in breaking away from elementary school? High school? College?

The whole person is a member of the family; the individual who attends third grade, or who graduates from college with honors, is a student. Students earn grades, but children and parents deserve and need each other's love.

The child grows up within the school as well as the family—but in some ways, the comparison stops there. For the family, as psychoanalyst Eric Erikson remarks, grows up in the process of bringing up its children.

Indeed, this growth is ongoing throughout the life cycle, although the relationship between adults and their own aging parents is one which has just begun to receive the attention of social scientists.

A lengthened life expectancy becomes the norm and not the exception. Yet, for a time, our own experience will have more to teach us than developmental psychologists.

Meanwhile, the family of today is in the process of change. Indeed, as a history of the family suggests, change is the rule and not the exception.

Headlines warning that the family is in crisis may indeed give us pause, but it is not the pause before the cataclysm, merely the pause of the curious observer, eager to see what new from this vigorously evolving social institution will take next.

NEXT: Kenneth Keniston, professor of human development at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and chairman of the Carnegie Council on Children, discusses the role of children in the family.

Nancy Datan is professor of psychology at West Virginia University, where she joined the faculty in 1973. She is co-editor of "Life-Span Developmental Psychology: Normative Life Crises," "Life-Span Developmental Psychology: Dialectical Perspectives," and "Transitions of Aging."

When 'merry Christmas' is empty phrase

By ANTHONY TRAXLER, Professor of Psychology and Director of SIUE Gerontology Program

With Thanksgiving comes the full swing of the holiday season. We have hardly had a chance to put away the ghosts and goblins of Halloween before we are urged to consider everything from tinsel to chestnuts and yule logs.

Christmas is promoted as a time of love, giving and togetherness. It is a time of high expectations for happiness.

"The season to be jolly, although for many individuals all the fa la la is emptiness. For them, Christmas and the holiday season are a time of unrealized expectations, family conflict, disappointment, anxiety and even depression.

This situation can be especially true of those individuals in middle adulthood and old age, although the phenomenon of holiday blues and depression is certainly not reserved solely for older adults.

University medical clinics and counseling centers throughout the country typically report a large increase in the number of holiday-related counseling sessions. They are anxious, angry, or depressed and need to talk about their decisions either to go home or not to go home for the holidays.

Community mental health centers also experience this phenomenon. An increasing number of them are offering workshops and counseling sessions which provide the individual with insight into and techniques for coping with frustrations, disappointment and anxiety during the holidays.

The holidays can be especially difficult for older adults who have experienced significant role loss through a changing family situation.

Role losses that occur with age are especially evident in late adulthood. Often, the losses not only a loved confident, but also a social and economic partner.

Retirement also involves significant role loss. Christmas and other holidays emphasize these losses because they often rekindle pleasant memories of people and activities of an earlier period in the life cycle.

As 65-year-old gentleman once told me he had outlived all of his relatives and that his last close friend had died when he was 70.

Loss of family and friends had greatly changed the way he celebrated Christmas. But he still found reason to celebrate.

There are some things that can be done to help older adults who have experienced significant losses in their lives to enjoy the holiday season.

If they will look around, they will find individuals who do not have family members or friends with whom to share the holidays. They might visit them or, better yet, invite them to share their Christmas. Small gifts, especially food items such as cookies, cakes and fruit, are often appreciated.

Older persons in nursing homes, or neighbors who may not have family or friends nearby, should also be considered as good candidates for sharing the Christmas spirit.

Be willing to accept a small gift from those individuals to whom you give a gift, even though they may be very poor. Individuals receive pleasure and satisfaction from giving as well as from receiving.

Why not try to carry out the Christmas spirit throughout the year? Adopt a volunteer adult as visit him or her on a regular basis.

One of the best Christmas I ever experienced was when I was 12 years old. An older gentleman, 86, lived in a shabby, one-room, wooden shack with a tar paper roof and pot-bellied stove.

My younger brother, Joe, and I chipped in and bought him a large can of Prince Albert tobacco. He was thrilled with his present. He thanked us and invited us to sit by the pot-bellied stove for a visit.

Both my brother and I noticed how warm the pot-bellied stove felt, but the real reason for our good feelings that came from sharing stayed with us long after we had the old gentleman good night.

It should be pointed out that in most instances the holidays tend to amplify problems.

This is sometimes due to the fact that the holidays bring together people who for some reason avoided being together throughout the year.

Some of these problems may be serious enough to require professional help. If you become depressed, the advice of your friends and relatives may be helpful to a point, but it can also magnify a problem by increasing one's frustrations and expectations.

To help eliminate the possibility of disappointment and frustration during the Christmas holidays, one can take the following steps:

Try to keep your expectations realistic. It is much easier to have a good time if you don't become over-dedicated to the notion that you must have a good time.

Don't take on too many activities or over-schedule yourself. Shopping, sending Christmas cards, baking, entertaining, all can be extremely pleasant and enjoyable activities, but they can also bring on exhaustion and fatigue if overdone.

Try to play down the emphasis on material things. Replace it with gifts of time. Spending time with family and friends with those individuals who are alone or are less fortunate.

Gene Baker looks back on 'best season ever'

NOTE: A special pull-out souvenir section of the State Soccer Tournament appears elsewhere in today's Press-Record. In it, pictures and additional stories on the tournament can be found.

GRANITE CITY — Gene Baker has done it all. He's done everything a high school coach could be expected to do. As he reflected on the past season in an interview with the Press-Record on Tuesday past, he looked exhausted. But there are hundreds of prep coaches in Illinois who'd gladly pay that price to do what Baker has done — win five straight state championships.

"Our goalie situation next season could be as good as it's been for us in a while," said Baker. "We'll have a returning starter in Joe LeMaster. He improved as the season went on. But he'll be pressed for the starting job by Brian Willis, who'll be a junior. And our other Jayvee goalies, Brian Dedson, who'll be a junior, has the talent to be a good, strong keeper."

Winning five state championships is the sort of thing that is a little numbing. It doesn't sink in at first. But Baker made some observations.

"It gives you a feeling of stability," he said. "It proves the tech skeptics that it takes more than luck to win the state championship. We do need luck at times, everybody does, but you can't rely on luck. I think we showed that this season."

"One of these days, another team other than one from Granite City is going to go to the State Finals. And when they do, they're going to find out that it's not automatic once you get out of Southern Illinois. The teams from Chicago are for the most part well-coached, good teams."

"In our area, the game is coming out of the embryonic stages. It's assuming an amount of maturity and I like that. The better the competition, the better I like it."

"Edwardsville has made great gains in just the last few seasons," he said. "In 1977, we beat them something like 11-0. They were pretty bad. But you saw what they were like this year (a 1-1 tie with South a 1-0 loss). Belleville East has also made good progress."

What's the secret? There can't be one simple answer. But according to one sort of scoring difference between his team and others in Illinois is the backfield. "You build from the backfield up," he said. "You'll find that the skill level in the backfields of our teams are better than most others. Chicago brand of soccer is more emotional. They get good efforts on the parts of their players. But they don't have the backfield skills. Our backs may not have the size and strength, but they know what to do with the ball and how to get it done. You don't stop teams by knocking them down, you do it by taking the ball away from them."

Baker knows when and where to be a rah-rah coach. He picks the times it will be effective.

"You can overdo the emotion thing," he said. "It got pretty heated at halftime of the Hinsdale game."

Baker thinks the IHSA would do well to re-instate the third place game at the State Finals. "I feel they should have it," he said. "The fact that they don't reflects something about the Association."

It's an injustice to the kids not to have it. It's like telling them that their sport isn't important enough for a third place game. I know when we won the third place game (in 1973) after losing in the semifinals on penalty kicks, we sure came home with a lot better feeling."

Baker's team this season did something that may not ever happen again. The Warriors beat the Missouri state champions, the Indiana state champions, won the Gateway East Conference title and won the O.Y.C. Tournament in addition to the state title. "It's a nice feeling," he said. "That kind of thing rarely happens. Endurance, the important theme on our teams. They have to put up with a lot. They have to endure — both physically and mentally."

Warrior spikers ease by E. St. Louis

EAST ST. LOUIS — The first time this season the Granite South girls volleyball team played Lincoln of East St. Louis, the Tigers prevailed in a match that went three games. It was good considering that it was the Warriors second game of the year and Lincoln's tenth.

South will have another shuteout at the Tigers tonight. The Warriors advanced to the finals of the IHSA Girls Class AA State District Volleyball Tournament at East St. Louis-Lincoln Tuesday with a resounding victory over East St. Louis 15-3 and 15-4.

The scores over the Flyers were impressive enough, but Warrior head coach Wilma Schulze felt, in the back of her mind, maybe they could have been better. What more do you want? Nine points in two game is a pretty good beating. "We will be playing against Lincoln on their home court," said Schulze. "The gym will be filled with their fans, which could possibly be a factor in the match. I just wanted people to know that we can play ball."

The Warriors didn't have to convince East St. Louis of that fact. The Flyers tried to prove to South that they could play, too. It took a while for the Warrior to get on track and East St. Louis took full use of the opportunity. The Flyers obtained all of their points early. In fact, they jumped out to a 3-0 lead before South put some tallies on the board.

Remaining calm, the Warriors' Karen Spencer promptly served up five points, and South never looked back. They (East St. Louis) weren't as strong as I thought they would be," said Schulze. "The crowd was with East St. Louis, but it didn't bother us."

Judging by the point spread, there wasn't too much that would shake up South. The Warriors took game two to show the Flyers the opening contest was just a fluke. "I think when it comes to the district tournament, the girls get a lot more excited about playing," said Schulze. "The determination to win was the key as the Warriors put up an attack the Flyers just couldn't handle. Susan Jeffries picked up against East St. Louis where she left off against Granite North. As the opening server for South, Jeffries connected with seven unanswered points. The Warriors were rolling. They didn't stop there, either. South was so much on the offense, it prevented the Flyers to put together any sort of scoring punch of their own."

"We didn't have to play that much defense, because they didn't attack the ball," said Schulze. "Our girls were in much more control of the game." South was in command of the game long enough until they knew they had a win.

Strutting to a 13-3 margin, the Warriors let up just a bit. It gave East St. Louis the chance to come up with three extra points. "I think the girls relaxed a little bit at that point," said Schulze.

East St. Louis should have never gotten those points, too. "I don't think they (South) were overly confident about this game. We weren't for sure what they had,"

North falls to Redwings in District

BY TOM SCHOCKER
of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — Well, the Granite North girls volleyball team finished its season Tuesday just like it had begun — without a win. It was an added disappointment to Adrienne Pumpfrey, because it was the last time she was to wear a Steeler net uniform.

Being a host of the ISHA Class AA Girls State Volleyball District Tournament, North had to feel something wasn't right when they were designated as the visiting team for its match. They must have even felt like it was a road game when Alton dropped the Steelers 15-11 and 15-4. It was the fifteenth time North has gone down in defeat, but Senior Captain Pumpfrey had a different feeling about this match.

"I really thought we would beat this team," said Pumpfrey. She was so sure, that she did everything in her power to see that it came about. In the little area the girls have to play, Pumpfrey must have covered every square inch. Serving up points, diving for shots, driving spikes and being an all-around cheerleader, Pumpfrey tried to do it all.

volleyball

But it took more than one person to win a game.

After losing fourteen in a row, how important could a game like this be? "I wanted this game about 12 times more than the North-South match," said Pumpfrey, "and you know how important the North-South match is." The determination and desire was there, however, the experience was shown in only one girl, Pumpfrey.

Alton's record was 1-18 and the match could have been an even contest. The start of the first game wiped that out. The Redwings jumped on top, as every team has against North, with a string of six straight points. The Steelers then pulled off a comeback. Something they have failed to produce all season. It took Freshman Lisa Lilley's six unanswered tallies before North felt like there was a chance.

"Alton had a little more experience," said Steeler

Adrienne Pumpfrey of Granite City North sends the ball skyward Tuesday night in prep district volleyball action at North. The Steelers lost to Alton 15-11 and 15-4.

head coach Sharon Bloodworth. "I thought we could play with them." They were playing all right. They were winning. Then something happened. North was up 11-9, with the serve. They lost it and Alton went on to capture the last six points and the game. "We missed serves in critical situations," said Bloodworth. "They must have been nervous. It's the first time any of them have played in a district tournament, except Adrienne. There were a lot more people here then ever before."

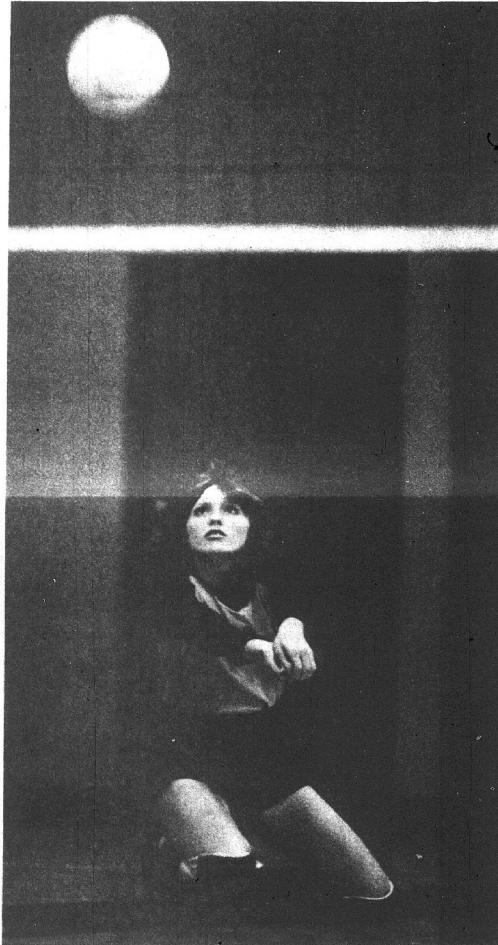

Pumpfrey felt the pressure and did want she could to help North. A number of her patent spikes went long and nothing seemed to go right. "I was creeping up to the net to fast," explained Pumpfrey. "If the other girls mess up, they look to me and if I mess up, I get down even more. Sometimes, they put a lot of the burden on me. I try to get them up, but they get down so easy — when they don't do so good."

Serving was the key to game two, also. The bottom line — the Redwings hit theirs, North didn't. It was as simple as that. In fact, neither team got on track for the first 20 minutes of the game. With a 2-0 Alton advantage, both squads went through the entire serving rotation before a point was gained. When a tally was finally scored, the Steelers came out on the short end again.

Alton ran up an 8-0 count.

The game was over. Bloodworth had a simple explanation. "We just fell apart. It was a total lack of concentration." Again, it was the ability for Alton to execute its serves, where North failed. "Serving has been the inconsistent part of our game, too," said Redwing head coach Darlene Peters. "We have a good team, but young. We have one senior, one junior and the rest are sophomores. Our top hitter was even out with a hand injury. Despite everything, I was very pleased with them."

Steamers are set to open season tonight

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Steamers will open their second Major Indoor Soccer League season here tonight when they host Baltimore, which last season played out of Houston.

The game will start at 7:35 p.m. at the Checkerdome. Last season, the Steamers were the nation's sports phenomenon when they burst upon the scene and averaged 14,000 fans per game — more than the St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League. And on top of that, the Steamers finished last.

With the addition of ironman John Stremlau, Tony Glavin and Southern Illinois star Don Ebert (the New York Cosmos' number one draft choice), the Steamers should be stronger and look to battle for the top spot in the Central Division.

PHILADELPHIA — The ever-growing following of the Hartford Hellions has become aware of the bargains of MISL soccer. The Hellions have kicked off three times in their permanent home at the Civic Center and three times the combatants have called for overtime to decide the issue. And if not for a fluke goal after a fatal slip by a goalkeeper, the revitalized Hellions would be 3-0.

Last week Hartford upset Atlantic Division rivals Baltimore and Philadelphia as John Kowalski gained his first pro coaching victory. The youngest MISL coach, Kowalski feels like he's 29 going on 79 after three consecutive season-opening extra time contests.

Dave MacKenzie gave Hartford its first win of the season after 1:30 of overtime against Baltimore and Mickey Cave ended the fifth longest MISL match at 8:25 against Philadelphia. Recently acquired goalkeeper Richard But (Boof) has helped the Hellions — winners of only six games last winter — become the most improved team in the League.

Cleveland and defending champion New York opened to record home crowds with victories last weekend. The new improved Force entertained 11,925 fans (tops for the 3-year franchise) with its organized play and a 7-3 win over expansion team Denver.

Grid playoffs close

BLOOMINGTON

Twelve schools with an awesome combined record of 139-7, including five unbeaten — will converge on Hancock Stadium on the campus of Illinois State University in Normal Friday and Saturday when the Illinois High School Association (IHSA) conducts its first set of championship games under the six-class format.

Now in their seventh year of existence, the football playoffs historically were conducted in a five-class setup based upon the average conference enrollment of the schools entered in that year's series. In 1980, the format was changed to eliminate the predetermined classification of schools according to conference enrollment, and to classify the 96 schools qualifying for the playoffs based upon their current school year enrollment. The smallest 16 teams qualifying for the 1980 series were assigned to Class 1A, the next 16 smallest to Class 2A, etc.

The spread in enrollments that resulted for 1980 was: Class 1A from 175 to 229; Class 2A from 230 to 428; Class 3A from 461 to 959; Class 4A from 961 to 1438; Class 5A from 1439 to 1889; and Class 6A from 1942 to 5268. Competition began Nov. 5 with preliminary round games in each class. Two of the teams finishing second last year return to the title game again seeking the crown. At Mt. Carmel, Ill., Decatur (St. Teresa) by a 35-12 count last November, has set its sites on the Class 2A championship. Morris runner-up in Class 3A last year to Mascoutah on a 7-6 count, shoots for the Class 3A crown again. None of the 19 other schools has ever appeared in the championship game before.

Pairings for the two-day extravaganza will be:

FRIDAY
11:15 a.m. — Class 1A
Atwood (A-Hammond) 13-0 vs. Lexington 11-1
3:15 p.m. — Class 2A
Danville (Schlarman) 12-0 vs. Amboy 12-0
7:15 p.m. — Class 3A
Harrisburg 12-0 vs. Morris 11-1

SATURDAY
11:15 a.m. — Class 4A
Belleville (Althoff) 11-1 vs. DeKalb 11-1
3:15 p.m. — Class 5A
Chicago (Mt. Carmel) 12-1 vs. Darien (Hinsdale South) 11-1
7:15 p.m. — Class 6A
Burbank (Reavis) 12-0 vs. Chicago (Gordon Tech) 11-1

For the first time in the second year of the playoffs series, a statewide network of stations will televise all or part of the competition Saturday. Each station on the IHSA Network is scheduled to carry two of the three games played Saturday. The decision as to what games will be telecast locally will be made by each station on the network. Those stations are: WICD-TV, Champaign; WGN-TV, Chicago; WRAT-TV, Peoria; KIQH-TV, Quincy; WIFR-TV, Rockford; WHBF-TV, Rock Island; and WICS-TV, Springfield.

Cougar kickers receive NCAA at-large tourney bid

BY AL BARNES
For the Press-Record

EDWARDSVILLE — Defending National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I soccer champions, the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville Cougars, have been picked to play in the 1980 post-season tournament. It has been announced by Ed Bigham, SIUE's athletic director, and Bob Guelker, the school's women soccer coach.

The Cougar kickers, on the basis of their "strength of schedule," were chosen as one of the NCAA Division I's four wild card elevens along with three other national soccer powerhouses, Duke University, Hartwick College (a team which won the crown in 1977) and Cleveland State.

With a 10-7-2 record, the Cougar soccer fans had nearly given up on their favorite's chances of receiving a bid. However, the selection committee obviously took into account the Cougars' tough schedule.

During the 1980 season the Cougars suffered one-goal losses to the University of Connecticut (1-0), the University of San Francisco (2-1 in overtime) and the University of Indiana (1-0), all three national powers in collegiate soccer.

Playing a large part in the decision of the selection committee's choice was SIUE's 3-1 victory over the Gamecocks of the University of South Carolina. During the season, the Gamecocks beat Duke and Cleveland State rather decisively.

The Cougars will meet the Mustangs of Southern Methodist University at 1 p.m. Sunday at Dallas O'Dwyer Stadium.

The Cougar's selection for the post-season NCAA tourney berth marked the 12th straight time a Guelker-coached SIUE soccer team has qualified. In fact, prior to that in eight years at St. Louis U., Guelker's teams made it to every post-season meet with five championships won by the Bills. His 1972 SIUE team also won the first NCAA Division II national crown.

Steelers lost much talent to graduation

By TOM SCHOCKER
of the Press Record

GRANITE CITY — Graduation is a special time for high school students. It can also be a painful one if you are a coach. For the Granite City North basketball team and head coach Bill Ohendorf, graduation was hard to swallow in 1980. The 1980-81 season will feature a limited number of experienced personnel for Ohendorf's cage squad.

"A problem that might prove to be North's largest stumbling stone in the upcoming campaign," said Ohendorf. "We graduated everyone that has played any varsity at all. In fact, we have only a couple of players that have had any playing experience and time. You would have to say the Steelers have a soft spot. 'It is our biggest weakness,' added Ohendorf.

"After almost two months of preparation, North doesn't have too much more time if any attempt are to meet the tender age. The opening game is only a week away.

"We're getting the practice right now," said Ohendorf. "Spending time learning on the floor, finding out what you can and can't do, it's all that can be done. The boys are working very hard and I'm happy with the competitive effort."

The intense competition on the practice floor has worked wonders in two ways for the Steelers. Not only has it gotten the players in good shape, it has also given Ohendorf a glimpse of hope for the season. "We have pretty good depth," said Ohendorf. "It will eventually be a strength for the team. The starting line-up is up for grabs," said Ohendorf. "All the positions are still open. I think we will be switching people around. The ones with the best practice will gain the starting spots. It's all well and good to leave the practice sessions to decide the top players, but the best test is the season contests. One that starts with a very good Wood River squad. 'Openers are the utmost important,'" said Ohendorf. "It will give us guidelines to what we have to accomplish. It can show the coaches weaknesses, also."

Entered in a pair of tournaments and battling through an 18 game schedule will be means to the young Steelers growth. A slate of games that gave North an 0-20 mark last year. "I think we have an extremely tough schedule," said Ohendorf. "It hasn't change from last year, but everyone else has improved. We could show an improvement throughout the year. Record-wise, though, it wouldn't show because of the schedule."

An improvement on the Steelers dismal season mark of a year ago will only be harder to correct if play in the Gateway East Conference has any bearing on it. "In conference, three of the five teams are as good as anyone in the area," said Ohendorf whose squad finished at 0-8 in the running last season. "It will be tough when you have to play Edwardsville, Belleville, Alton and Cahokia twice. The Granite schools probably won't be in the rankings, but the inter-city rivalry will make it tough. The chips are certainly stacked against North. Success may be hard to come by. If it is to be found, Ohendorf knows of only one way. "Everybody on the team must give a positive contribution if we are to be successful," said Ohendorf. "If everybody lives up to their roles, we'll be all right. If not, we will most definitely fall short."

North swimmers perform well

MACOMB — Overlooking the fact that their high school has neither a swimming pool nor a swim team, three determined young ladies from Granite City North participated in the Illinois High School Girls District Swimming Championships here Saturday.

Sophomore Cindi Strotheide and Freshmen J'lynn Hankins and Joelle Kalicki swam well against a field of teams from Belleville, Collinsville, Edwardsville, Freeburg, Jacksonville, Lebanon, Macomb, Monmouth, O'Fallon, Quincy, Rochester and Springfield. Although lacking in team size, the girls wanted to see how their swimming abilities compared with other area high school swimmers. Hankins won a third place medal in the 100 yard breaststroke, finishing with a time of 1:18.03. She also placed ninth in the 200 yard individual medley at 2:40.33. Strotheide earned a fourth place in the 100 yard butterfly.

Cahokia hopes to build on solid groundwork

By TOM SCHOCKER
of the Press Record

CAHOKIA — Last basketball season, the Effingham Flaming Hearts made it the finals of the ISIAA Boys' Class AA Basketball Tournament. Up to that point, Effingham had lost only one game. It was the Cahokia Comanches. Earlier in the season, a top-ranked Peoria Richwoods team was knocked off, giving them just one loss until the quarterfinals in Champaign. That loss also can be at the hands of Cahokia. With that type of striking power, teams will have to feel wary about the Comanches in the 1980-81 season.

"We can definitely play with any team at any given time," said Cahokia head coach Ken McBride. "It was just type of team last year. We are certainly capable being that way this season. We can be awesome and pull off the big game at times."

That was last season.

McBride has lost four of his starters from the 16-10 squad of a year ago. He does have a least one front line player coming back, which may not be a all that bad. It was his best player. "It's going to be tough, but we do have John Collins back," said McBride. "I'll tell you, he's a player."

Collins, you might say, will have to be the franchise for the Comanches. As a junior last season, he averaged 20 points a game and 12 rebounds. "He was an all-area player on both sides of the river last year," said McBride. "The team will be looking to him for the points. He is capable of doing so. He was on last year, I hope he can be this season." In other words, when Collins is on, though. Repeating as giant killers may be a little more difficult this time around. McBride has lost four of his starters from the 16-10 squad of a year ago. Cahokia is on. It will be a lot more than one player to repeat the performance the Comanches pulled off in the Gateway East Conference in 1980. Striving to a second place finish at 6-2, Cahokia lost out to conference king Edwardsville. McBride feels it will be the Tigers who must be stopped again. "Edwardsville will definitely have to be the favorites," said McBride. "They have so much talent coming back. Belleville Alton is another team with a lot of players back. So, you can't count them out either. It will be a good year for competition in the league!"

Overcoming their problems will be the key for the Comanches to return to the warpath. "Some people

Tigers, Oilers winners

GRANITE CITY — Wood River and East St. Louis Lincoln will advance to the finals of their respective district tournament with wins Tuesday night.

Wood River had little trouble defeating Jerseyville 15-4 and 15-4 here Tuesday. Kay Holt stood out for the Oilers in the opener as she served up six points. Chris Schutte also produced a number of tallies when she accounted for the final four points in game two. She totaled seven for the game.

Wood River (14-13) will face the Alton Redwings (2-18) in the championship match tonight at North. The winner will advance to the Collinsville Sectional starting November 24.

The Tigers of East St. Louis Lincoln moved into the finals of their own IHSA Girls Class AA State Volleyball District Tournament with 19-4 and 15-11 triumph over Cahokia here Tuesday.

Lincoln had an easy time in game one, but it took some late heroics to pull out game two for the match. Down 6-0 and 9-4, the Tigers finally caught the Comanches at 10-11. They went on to squeak out the win.

Lincoln will face Granite City South (14-9) in the finals tonight. The winner will advance to the Collinsville Sectionals beginning November 24.

think we were going to be up this year," said McBride. "Fundamentally, we are not very sound. I just hope to come along as the season goes along."

McBride better hope the progression doesn't take too long. "With the type of schedule the Comanches have, a prolonged learning period might be disastrous. In addition to the conference, which I feel is one of the best in the area, night in and night out, we play all the teams in the Southwestern Conference," said McBride. "There are no sleepers on our schedule. What more can you ask for. We play them all."

Combating this rigorous campaign, Cahokia is counting on a strong, solid squad and a solid bench. "We don't have to rely on five kids," said McBride. "We have seven or eight we can go to. We have numbers. I think that is something most teams would like to have."

Edwardsville could be one of area's best

By TOM SCHOCKER

EDWARDSVILLE — Once you have been number one, it's always hard to think you couldn't be it again. In basketball, returning to that status is not all that easy. For the member in the Gateway East Conference, the prevention of a second year championship can mean only one thing - gun down the Edwardsville Tigers. Edwardsville posted a 7-1 conference mark in 1980, enroute to the championship and eventual advancement to the IHSA Sectional Finals. Head Coach Gene Vellino feels that the 21-10 performance of a year ago is not beyond the grasp of the 80-81 Tigers. "We have some pretty good boys back from last year," said Vellino. "Our conference championship last year should rank us one or two this season. I think we can return on top again."

The Tigers will have to consider the opinions of the other teams in the conference first. "The conference will be pretty good overall," said Vellino. "Last year, there was a number of young players, but everyone will be improved. It will be a tougher conference because of the maturity."

If any one should have the veteran squad, Edwardsville may take one big step forward. "We need to play some ball games, to see how really good we are," said Vellino. "Our progression has been really good. We'll have more speed this year, which we will enable us to do a few more things than last season."

little extra things will be enhanced with a strong Tiger bench. "We will have more depth on this team," said Vellino. "It will definitely help. In fact, I'm counting on it right now."

Losing a first team all conference player in Dan Allaria, the Tigers can boost a rather 'bad' smile on the players' that will move into their lineup.

In a team that averages around six foot one in the guard and forward positions, Edwardsville will have a lofty Paul Schafer playing the center spot. Schafer is a six foot seven junior. In all hopes, he will help strengthen, what Vellino calls, the teams biggest weakness - rebounding. "We are not a sticky build club," said Vellino. "We will definitely go to Schafer. The inside game is our style."

The style of the Edwardsville game plan has been picking up the last few weeks of practice according to Vellino.

Do you know why we say, "Selling a house is easy, keeping it sold is tough?"

More than 50% of all home sales have major closing problems. 50% of that's why CENTURY 21 Neighborhood Professionals are trained to concentrate on follow-through. No paperwork detail is too small, no processing or handling procedure too unimportant to escape our scrutiny.

Our aim is to make sure your sales closes on time and you get all you expect. We call it "Seller's Peace of Mind."

We put it all in writing in an agreement called the Action Warranty. And then we back it up with the most important agreement of all. A Handshake. A handshake.

Let a Neighborhood Professional sell your house. And keep it sold.

Arlin Davis
trial reset

The trial of Arlin Davis has been reset for trial in circuit court at Edwardsville Nov. 24.

Davis, facing three charges of reckless homicide, driving while intoxicated and driving with a revoked license had originally been set for trial last Monday before Circuit Judge Victor J. Mosele.

The charges result from an accident last New Year's Eve on State Rd 35 in which three Granite City residents were killed.

The case has been delayed several times but it was reported there is a good chance the case will get under way next week.

Phone gift

Illinois Bell is now participating in the Bell System's first nationwide gift certificate plan, it was announced by Patti Prill, product manager.

Called the "Big Hello," the program features certificates in denominations of $20, $25 and $100. The $20 unit contains four $5 "Phone-Checks"; the $25 and $100 units are single Phone-Checks.

All certificates are redeemable by all Bell System companies, by most independent phone companies in the United States and by phone companies in Canada.

The Phone-Checks are available at Phone Center Stores, Bell Phone Booths (during the upcoming holiday season) and by calling residence service centers. Also, customers can order the certificates by calling toll free to 800-672-9010. Buyers of Phone-Checks may pay cash or charge the purchase to home phone bills.

Illinois Bell would handle the gift certificates, which look like traveler's checks, the same as bank checks. For the first time, customers will be able to give long-distance calls to family and friends.

Certificates also can be used to purchase any phone company product or service or can be applied toward holiday season) and by calling residence service centers. Also, customers can order the certificates by calling toll free to 800-672-9010. Buyers of Phone-Checks may pay cash or charge the purchase to home phone bills.

Although the Phone-Checks were introduced in time for the 1980 holiday season, they are not just for holiday giving. Miss Prill said, "The Big Hello program will be around all year long."

District Governor
hosted by GC Lions

Lions District Governor James H. Fenton, of Lions International District I-G, made his official visit to the Granite City Lions club Thursday evening.

GC Lions President Elmer L. Wortham presided over the club dinner meeting. Other Lions officials in attendance were Deputy District Governor Don Patrick, of Pontoon Beach, Zone Chairman Clay Breihan, of Edwardsville, Edwardsville Lions Club President Gene Jordan and Pontoon Beach Lions Club President Dave Schormer.

Gov. Fenton is the athletic director at Carlinville, Ill., high school. The Governor has a 20 years perfect attendance record at Lions meetings. He has every office in his club, is holder of the Guiding Lion Award, Advancement Key, and the President's Award. Instead of presenting the Lion Governor, the traditional gift, the GC Lions bought hearing aide batteries for needy children with the money they would have spent as a gift.

The batteries were presented to the children on behalf of Gov. Fenton.

During the meeting former GC Lions President Harley Davis, now membership chairman, announced that the club would seek to recruit five new members.

Eye Donor Chairman Lion Dick Foy announced he was contacting all civic organizations in an effort to further the eye donor program.

The number of available openings for prior service applicants has doubled over last year's figure of 2,500. "This means we are now able to accommodate more applicants in a more varied range of Air Force jobs," he said.

Immediate openings exist for prior military members with training in aircraft mechanics, medical, administration, security and electronic areas, along with many others.

"It is possible for prior Air Force members to enter at the same rank in which they were discharged," Major Pfeiffer added. "Members of the Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard may be allowed to retain promotions made since their discharge, in most cases."

For more information, prior military members may contact the Prior Service Monitor for the Eastern Missouri, and Southern Illinois area at 314-253-0025, or see the local Air Force recruiter.

The Granite City Lions club meets the second Thursday of each month and holds a directors meeting on the fourth Thursday of each month.

May study adding
TC Port docks

Colonel Robert J. Dacey, district engineer of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, has announced that the Corps has selected a consulting firm and is beginning work on the third stage of the St. Louis harbor study.

The study is designed to propose solutions to siltation problems and identify the potential for commercial harbor development within the Port of Metropolitan St. Louis, which includes the Tri-City Port. The announcement came at a meeting of the St. Louis Metropolitan Port Advisory Council.

The firm of Espey, Huston and Associates has been retained to conduct Stage III of the Draft Feasibility Report of the St. Louis Harbor Study," Col. Dacey said.

"The input of the Port Advisory Council and other interested parties has been of great assistance to the Corps and will ensure that the study will be a valuable document in realizing the maximum potential from the Port of Metropolitan St. Louis."

The Port Advisory Council has submitted a list of projects to the Corps which it felt should be included in the harbor study. The colonel indicated that the Corps of Engineers would give full consideration to including as many of the suggested projects as it could in the study.

The Port Advisory Council has been working closely with the Corps to complete the harbor study," said Charles G. Houghton, chairman of the Port Advisory Council and executive director of the Bi-State Development Agency.

"The way the Corps so readily and willingly accepted our input is a clear indication of the solid partnership that exists between local and federal interests within the Port."

The project which the Port Advisory Council asked to have investigated in the upcoming phase of the St. Louis harbor study are: development of an industrial area in the Columbia Bottoms area of North St. Louis County; development of an off-channel harbor on Chesley Island in Jefferson County; feasibility of constructing several slip type harbors and marginal docking facilities within the Tri-City Regional Port District in Illinois.

Also, improving access from the main channel to docking facilities along the north riverfront area in the City of St. Louis; creation of an off-channel harbor in the Cahokia Chute area of St. Clair County; development of a floating basin on the Kaskaskia Canal; development of a small boat and pleasure craft marina in the St. Louis harbor; feasibility of a dual harbor; and further study of ongoing siltation, and floating problems within the Port of Metropolitan St. Louis.

The Port Advisory Council is composed of the managers of the seven port districts and authorities which make up the Port of Metropolitan St. Louis, plus area terminal operators and users of the Port.

The purpose of the Port Advisory Council is to coordinate development alternatives to control sediment within the Port, improve commercial harbor facilities, and investigate the need for appropriate barge floating areas.

The consulting firm will conduct interviews with current port users to determine the specific nature of the problems, make commodity movement projections, and develop at least four workable alternative plans.

After assessing the economic, environmental, and social impacts of each plan, it will make recommendations to the Corps of Engineers. A draft report to the Corps is scheduled to be completed by the end of March 1981.

Openings for Air veterans

There is good news this year for active military members who are seeking a tour of duty with the Air Force, according to Major Jim Pfeiffer, commander of Air Force recruiting in this area.

The number of available openings for prior service applicants has doubled over last year's figure of 2,500. "This means we are now able to accommodate more applicants in a more varied range of Air Force jobs," he said.

Immediate openings exist for prior military members with training in aircraft mechanics, medical, administration, security and electronic areas, along with many others.

"It is possible for prior Air Force members to enter at the same rank in which they were discharged," Major Pfeiffer added. "Members of the Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard may be allowed to retain promotions made since their discharge, in most cases."

For more information, prior military members may contact the Prior Service Monitor for the Eastern Missouri, and Southern Illinois area at 314-253-0025, or see the local Air Force recruiter.

Assistant housing director resigns

By ED GURNEY
The assistant executive director of the Madison County Housing Authority resigned Thursday night, surprising the authority board, which was apparently going to reappoint her.

Paula (Schuler) Hubbard, 24, of Granite City, handed a one-sentence letter of resignation to the board during a closed personnel session held to discuss reappointments. She had worked for the authority for two years.

"I was unable to function in my position," she told a reporter. "My growth was stunted."

"This place could be a top-notch place. I really believe that," she said. "It needs a lot of work."

Mrs. Hubbard said the board was not the reason she decided to resign effective Nov. 30. She declined to comment further on her departure, although she said she wants to get a job in public relations journalism.

She has a bachelor's degree in mass communications from Western Illinois University.

Mrs. Hubbard had considered resigning earlier, before the board named her assistant executive director in January 1980.

Board Chairman James May of Edwardsville acknowledged the board was surprised to receive the resignation. "We'll miss her," he said.

May appointed a personnel committee, chaired by Reese Hoskins of Collinsville, to find a replacement for Mrs. Hubbard.

She had served as secretary-treasurer to the board prior to her appointment as assistant executive director.

She retained the treasurer's job when she was promoted.

The board also formally accepted the resignation of its Section 8 (rent subsidy) program administrator, Lee Cox.

Linda Fulcher of Granite City was named to replace him at an annual salary of $15,000. She had been the authority's accountant.

Executive Director Janet Haroian said a number of applicants have been interviewed for Linda Fulcher's job, with a replacement expected to be hired this week.

Janet Haroian was reappointed as the authority's top administrator following the board's personnel session, which lasted more than one hour. Her salary was boosted from $21,536 to $23,679.

Board Secretary Jackie Bone of Collinsville was also reappointed.

Hoskins voted against going into closed session. He said the board in the last few years has asked that the executive and Paul Bargiel of Madison voted for his re-election. Hoskins voted against it and the other board member, Thomas Jun of Alton, was absent.

Bargiel was elected first vice-chairman and Davis was picked as second vice-chairman.

In related business, May was re-elected board chairman by a 3-1 vote.

May, Mary Jean Davis of East Alton, and director of Madison voted for his re-election. Hoskins voted against it and the other board member, Thomas Jun of Alton, was absent.

Bargiel was elected first vice-chairman and Davis was picked as second vice-chairman.

South teachers at conference

Among the more than 130 teachers who attended the English Articulation Conference at the University of Illinois in Urbana last weekend were Mrs. Cynthia Hornell and Mrs. Sandra Hughes of the Granite City High School South English faculty.

This meeting, held annually, is an effort to improve relations between the high school and the university so that high school graduates may more easily make the transition to college work.

This conference is extremely helpful, since teachers learn more about university expectations, requirements, and standards. More than 6,000 students are enrolled in Freshman Rhetoric at the University of Illinois every year. They are required to do a great deal of writing, including a 58 page research paper.

On Friday morning Mrs. Hornell and Mrs. Hughes observed rhetoric and literature classes. Conferees later heard Robert Schuman, chairman of the Rhetoric Department in charge of over 200 instructors, who led discussion following teachers' attendance at various group sessions.

He complimented teachers, pointing out that they are expected not only to teach English, but also to deal with almost every sociological problem that students encounter.

Emphasizing that effective, competent instructors can teach students to improve their writing by developing writing skills, he also stated that every teacher, regardless of subject area, should include writing in every course throughout both the high school and the university.

In addition, he stressed the importance of student responsibility: turning in papers on time, following instructions, making corrections.

A panel of six high school teachers gave practical suggestions for stimulating writing activities among students at all levels of performance, for avoiding plagiarism, and for utilizing the media.

University literature teachers also presented a program, revealing how writing can be incorporated into the teaching of literature and how to deal with problems students experience in writing about literature and discussing point of view, tone, structure, theme.

CHAPTER ELECTS

CARLA SANDERS has been elected president of the Belleville Area College chapter of Phi Beta Lambda, national business fraternity. Miss Sanders, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sanders of Granite City, is working toward a degree in liberal arts as well as an associate of applied science degree in business.

She is a peer advisor and secretary to the security office at the college.

COURT APPEARANCE

In appearance before a judge at 1:30 p.m. Monday, Ferd J. Schmidt, 58, of 3209 Kirkpatrick Homes, was found in contempt. He had been arrested during the weekend on three warrants, each charging disorderly conduct. He was fined $100 and $105 and ordered to be committed to jail if the fines are not paid by Dec. 5.

Role of defense lawyers clarified

(State Bar Association) Public knowledge and understanding of the judicial process is often partly derived from television courtroom dramas and police shows.

According to the Illinois State Bar Association, these dramatizations can be misinterpreted and sometimes lead to miss conceptions about the criminal justice system; they can also leave uncertainties about the role of lawyers who represent defendants in criminal cases.

As advocates for defendants who are accused of breaking society's laws, defense lawyers are sometimes misunderstood because many aspects of criminal law itself are misunderstood. For example, —If a defendant confides in his lawyer that he did indeed commit the crime, the lawyer does not have to disclose the client's admission of guilt to the court or to anyone else. The lawyer may urge the client to change his plea to guilty, but the accused has immunity from self-incrimination under the 5th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The lawyer is bound by ethical and professional obligations not to reveal statements made by the accused in confidence.

—It is up to the lawyer in private practice to decide whether to accept a particular case, and a lawyer may refuse to defend a person who is accused of a crime.

However, the Constitution also says the accused has a right to legal counsel, and defendants who are unable to pay for legal representation may be defended by a court-appointed lawyer.

—The defense lawyer's responsibility is to be an advocate for the accused, doing everything within the law to clear the defendant of the charges. But it is not the lawyer's responsibility to determine his client's guilt or innocence.

It is the responsibility of the prosecution to prove the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt and it is up to the court—the judge or the jury—to decide guilt after hearing evidence from both the prosecution and the defense.

—The attorney's job is to advise the client about the various decisions to be made and how the defense will be handled. The lawyer should make sure his client fully understands the consequences of such decisions, but it is the client who must decide and bear the consequences.

The goal of insuring justice in our society demands that defendants be represented by competent legal counsel who vigorously fulfill their duties to their clients.

The Illinois State Bar Association says every lawyer is sworn to uphold a Code of Professional Responsibility which requires the lawyer to —represent a client zealously within the bounds of the law.

Failure by a lawyer to represent a client's interest to the fullest extent possible could be grounds for disciplinary action or for a lawsuit against the lawyer for malpractice.
